TOURIST INFLUX GROWS DESPITE TRAFFIC RULES

Post Inquiry Disproves A. A. A. Accusation Against Code.

CRITICIZED LIFE TURN WAS HELD DETERRENT

Potomac Camp, Garages and Hotels Report Visitor Increase.

BUSINESS CONDITIONS UNAFFECTED, ALL SAY

No Evidence Is Found That Travelers Shun City, as Charged by Auto Official.

By WILLIAN ULLMAN.

Despite the fact that Washington has a left turn for automobile traffic that is generally condemned, it is not keeping visitors from the city, as charged by the American Automobile Association. On the contrary, the number of persons who come to view the points of interest in or near the National Capital is constantly increasing, according to those who are in a position to make an accurate estimate.

Taking the attitude that a subject so vitally affecting local merchants was not to be lightly bandied about with the possibility that distortion of the truth might have a serious adverse effect on business, The Post has made its own investigation of conditions to find out:

Fourfold Purpose of Inquiry.

Whether Washington is losing its attraction for the tourist, particularly the motor tourist;

Whether those local business men who come in direct contact with the tourist have received comment from visitors or prospective visitors regarding dissatisfaction with traffic regulations as a deciding factor in either leaving the city earlier than they had planned or avoiding it altogether;

Whether a check on the number of persons entering Washington by automobile showed an increase or a decrease;

Whether, in short, the statement of Ernest N. Smith, recently advanced from general manager of the A. A. A. to the post of executive vice president, could be substantiated by the facts as reported by local business men, or whether the attack on Washington's left-turn system was motivated by unfairness and a rash forgetfulness of its possible effect on the business life of the National Capital.

The result of the investigation, in so far as it has been possible to assemble significant figures and statements based on close observation, has been materially to "debunk" the A. A. A. charge that the rest of the country is avoiding Washington as one would the smallpox.

Tourist Camps as Index.

Business conditions in Washington, in so far as they are affected by motor tourist travel, are flourishing more impressively than ever, according to hotel men and officials of the tourist camp who are called upon to provide accommodations for the anual influx of visitors. If there are persons who have worried about traveling by motor car to the National Capital because of its individual left turn system, or any other reason, they have kept it a secret from the very men whose business it is to obtain just such information, the investigation showed.

Starting at the tourist camp, where the dyed in the wool motor traveler seeks accommodations after a day of arduous driving, the survey revealed at the outset an increase of visitors to the National Capital in a proportion that can be explained only by accepting as fact that Washington is going forward consistently as an attraction for motorists from coast to coast, and that there is no deterrent.

On the day inquiry was made the number of persons in the tourist camp was 827, as against 471 for the same day last year. Arrivals on that day totaled 415, whereas they were but 397 a year ago.

The number of persons for the year to date was 17,333, an increase of nearly 50 per cent over the 12,493 who sought accommodations at the camp up to July 18, 1928.

Mount Vernon Crowds Grow.

Believing that residents of the States, despite their visitations of the National Capital, still may have been resentful of its traffic methods, endeavor was made to obtain such adverse comment they may have expressed. P. H. Goundie, manager of the tourist camp, however, declared that he has never heard criticism of traffic conditions in Washington from his patrons.

Then inquiry as made at Mount Vernon, where a daily count is made of visitors. Figures there, it was believed, would show if such an outstanding point of historic interest

URGES MILITANT ACTION

Special to The Washington Post.

Danville, Va., July 19.—Seventy Virginia newspaper publishers or their representatives discussed mutual problems here today at the opening of the forty-first annual meeting of the Virginia Press Association. It was announced that the fund to provide a placque commemorating William Parks, Virginia's first printer, at Williamsburg, has been raised.

The closing session will be held tomorrow, with the expectation that W. Y. Morgan, of Warsaw, will be reelected president and that Roanoke will be chosen for the 1930 meeting. The newspaper men will be entertained at Martinsville tomorrow, where a road celebration will be in progress. Gov. Byrd will be there, but Gov. Max Gardner of North Carolina sent word today that he could not be present and is sending a representative. Gov. Doyle Carlton of Florida, en route home from the Connecticut conference, will be present.

Louis I. Jaffe, editor of the Norfolk Virginian Pilot and one of the Pulitzer prize winners this year, was the speaker at the annual banquet tonight. He contrasted the editorial mind of yesterday and today in Virginia and counseled against being swept away by the wave of Virginia's new industrialism at the expense of more fundamental and cultural virtues. His address, in part, follows:

"A measure of material success has overtaken our publishing enterprises and a little of it has seeped down to the news executives and editorial writers. With the new affluence has come a decided and perhaps natural disposition toward urbanity, an unconscious tendency to look upon the immediately profitable as probably right, to curb a little the old enthusiasm with which in leaner days we used to lash out against compromises with principles and ideals. They are probably common to most Southern States."

HUGE INCREASE IN GOVERNMENT COST FORECAST

$300,000,000 Jump in the Next Four Years Estimated by White House.

GAIN FOR THIS YEAR PUT AT $91,800,000

Annual Expenditures to Go Above $4,000,000,000 Once Again.

FEDERAL AGENCIES NEED MORE FUNDS

Farm Relief, Postal Losses and Military Service Necessities Cited.

(Associated Press.)

An increase in governmental expenditures of approximately $300,000,000 during the next four years was forecast by the White House yesterday after a study of appropriations made by Congress and other mandatory obligations.

The increase, if it materializes, will send the total yearly Government expenditures out of ordinary receipts above $4,000,000,000, for the first time since the years of heavy war expenses. For the fiscal year closing last June 30 the total Government expenditures aggregated $3,848,463,189 while the increase for this year was estimated at $91,800,000.

The report of the investigation into the probable increases in Federal expenses transmitted to the White House showed that additional expenditures for the military service, public works, postal deficit, farm relief and other Government costs would in four years total $300,000,000. Of this amount farm relief was expected to account for at least $150,000,000 while the increases in the three divisions of Government activity was expected to total $139,800,000 with other Government departments also showing increases due to natural growth to keep pace with population and social needs.

Increase This Year.

The figures showed that the total expenditures for the Army, Navy, public works and postal deficit this year were expected to approximate $1,100,800,000, an increase of $91,800,000 over last year, while for next year those expenditures were estimated at $1,129,200,000, an increase of $28,400,000. For 1932 the estimate placed those expenditures at $1,145,800,000, another increase of $16,600,000, and in 1933 at $1,148,800,000, an increase of $3,000,000, bringing the total estimate increase to $139,800,000.

The increase in naval expenditures was attributed to extended aviation, the new cruiser construction and capital ship replacement program, but some hope for a decrease in this direction was held out if there is a reduction in naval armament. The increased Army expenditures were due to the aviation program and rebuilding of quarters, while the increased postal deficit was attributed to lower rates, increased wages and decreased hours of employment.

Public Works.

The public work expenditures include rivers and harbors improvements, flood control and constructing Boulder Canyon dam, public buildings and public

Breezes Cool Capital Below Many Cities

Temperature for Last Few Days Compares Favorably With Other Places; Mercury Here 10 to 15 Degrees Lower Than at Los Angeles.

While Washington has been enjoying cooling breezes for the past week, a number of other cities which might be expected to prove ideal summer resorts have had temperatures considerably higher than the Nation's Capital, so that residents here can do a little boosting of the home town climate without fear of contradiction.

And the cool spell is not unusual, much as some other cities would have the great American tourist army believe. In the past four days Washington's mean temperature has been 76, 70, 68 and 70, respectively, with the average over a period of 50 years at 77, so that the drop is not enough to cause a sensation.

The highest temperature in the Capital yesterday was 74, with the lowest 68, just comfortable at this time of the year. It will be fair and cool today, the Weather Bureau predicts, and indications are that the week-end will hold the same brand of weather for natives and visitors alike.

Probably the best means of showing how delightful the Washington weather has been recently is a comparison with the thermometer readings in other cities, normally cooler than the Capital.

On Monday, when Washington's high was 74, this city was 15 degrees cooler than Bismarck, N. Dak.; 1 degree cooler than Boston and Buffalo, N. Y.; 13 degrees cooler than Denver, Colo.; 3 lower than Duluth, Minn.; 1 degree below Pittsburgh, and 15 degrees cooler than Los Angeles.

When the high temperature was 77 here Tuesday it was 20 degrees cooler than Bismarck, the same as Buffalo, 4 degrees cooler than Cincinnati and 2 degrees cooler than Detroit. Washington was also 8 degrees below Duluth, 6 degrees below Louisville and 10 degrees below Los Angeles.

The margin was not so great on Wednesday, when a high of 80 degrees was reached here, but the city compared favorably with other places. The Capital was still 6 degrees lower than Bismarck, 2 lower than Boston, and only 2 higher than Buffalo. The temperature was 4 degrees lower than in Cincinnati and Louisville and only 2 degrees above that of Cleveland.

Thursday, when the highest of the week was recorded here, a temperature of 84 degrees, Washington was the same as Baltimore and Boston, 2 degrees lower than Cincinnati and Indianapolis and 6 degrees below Louisville. The city's temperature was 2 degrees above that of Bismarck.

These facts, supplied by the United States Weather Bureau, uphold the contention of the Washington Chamber of Commerce that the Capital is just as delightful a place to spend the summer months as many of the cities which send out circulars advertising thei "summer climate" and in some instances making derogatory remarks about the "heat" in Washington.

$42,000 MONEY AUTO IS SEIZED BY BANDITS

New Orleans Robbers Throw Out Guards in Daring Daylight Holdup.

DOZEN SHOTS ARE FIRED

New Orleans, July 19 (A.P.).—Masked bandits stole an armored money truck containing $42,000 in cash and negotiable checks off the streets of New Orleans early today and disappeared.

After an all-day search the police had been unable to find any trace of either the robbers or the motor car. The only clue they had was a description furnished by the bank guards, who were thrown off the truck by the bandits and chased into a restaurant, while the thieves escaped in the car, firing their pistols as they sped away.

Apparently the robbery had been carefully planned. The truck was making its daily rounds at the branches of the Hibernia Bank & Trust Co. when it was forced to the curb by a gray sedan, out of which jumped three bandits, wearing black hoods over their heads and black raincoats. As they sprang to the running board of the truck, they fired their pistols. The guards were thrown out as a bandit grabbed the wheel of the truck.

One bandit chased the guards into the restaurant, another turned the sedan, which was stolen, crosswise in the street, another blocked a cross street with a second machine, and all of them boarded the armored truck and escaped.

Before onlookers realized what had happened the bandits had disappeared. Police believe they took the car to a prearranged hiding place and divided the loot. Although more than a dozen shots were fired, no one was injured.

New Liner Threatens To Break Sea Records

S. S. Bremen, at Sea, July 19 (By Radio to the A. P.).—The Bremen today made 697 nautical miles. On a basis of 24 hours this would indicate a speed of 28.6 knots. The North German Lloyd Co. disclaimed any intention of attempting to set a new record for the westward crossing of the new ship, but the public generally expected to see a blow struck at the present five days, three hours and seventeen minutes set by the British steamship Mauretania.

The Bremen sailed from Cherbourg at 1:50 a. m. (7:50 p. m., Eastern standard time, July 17) on Thursday, July 18, for New York.

Little Rock, July 19 (A.P.).—Women ranging from a 60-year-old mother to a 20-year-old stockingless girl were arrested today in a drive on women bootleggers in Arkansas and just across the border in Texas.

Federal prohibition agents who arrested fourteen women at Texarkana yesterday in a series of raids designed to put a stop to female bootlegging in that section crossed into Texas and arrested the girl and a woman, the mother of two children.

Woman Hit by Car Is Critically Hurt

Margaret M. Smith, Driver, Held by Police After Accident.

Mrs. Elizabeth W. Williams, 49 years old of 2706 Bladensburg road northeast, was in a critical condition at Casualty Hospital late last night after being struck by an automobile while crossing the street near her home. A companion, Mrs. Elizabeth Dunn, 50 years old, of 2623 Bladensburg road, was also hit by the car, but she escapes with shock and bruises. An examination by Dr. Rogers Young, at the hospital, revealed that Mrs. Williams had a fractured skull, three broken ribs and internal injuries.

The driver of the automobile, Miss Margaret M. Smith, 30 years old, of 423 Washington avenue, Riverdale, Md., was held at the Twelfth Precinct station pending further information as to Mrs. Williams' condition. She was accompanied in the automobile at the time of the accident by Col. George Williams, U. S. Cavalry, of 1810 Nineteenth street northwest.

Witnesses told police that the car was going down Bladensburg road toward Washington as the two women crossed the road. It was said that the auto skidded for some distance after striking the pedestrians.

Mrs. Dunn was treated by Dr. C. A. Credeling, physician, and returned to her home.

HOOVER IS WON OVER BY G.O.P. ON TARIFF BILL

President Is Now in Full Accord With Senate's "Regular" Chiefs.

AGREEMENT REACHED ON PROPOSED CHANGE

House Duties on Building Materials Expected to Be Removed.

SUGAR MAY CONTINUE BONE OF CONTENTION

Executive's Friends Stress Fact That He Stands by Republicans.

By CARLISLE BARGERON.

President Hoover has decided to be a Republican tariff President instead of a Democratic-Progressive coalition one. He may have come to the conclusion reluctantly, he may have never even considered otherwise. The reports that he was sympathetic to the coalition cause may have been all wrong.

But the President is now in full accord with the Senate regulars. A perfect understanding exists between him and Senators Watson and Smoot and the others who will shape the Senate finance committee bill. There is definite agreement as to the form this bill will take and together they will stand in defense of the proposed administration changes that would turn tariff making over to the President.

This working accord, while revealing, does not, however, mean what it would have meant a few weeks ago when the House bill was passed by the Republican House. There seems to be but little doubt that the House bill will be greatly modified when it leaves the Senate committee. This seems to be a part of the agreement.

Probable Modifications.

As to just where the modifications are to come in remains to be seen, but there is a strong belief that the House duties on shingles, cement and other building materials generally will be removed. With this done the difference between the coalition and the regulars will have been considerably narrowed. The only big fight left, in fact, will be that on the administrative changes.

Sugar may continue to be a bone of contention. Undoubtedly it will be, but something also has been happening in that regard. There has been a noticeable subsidence in the big sugar fight. There is still sparring in some quarters, but the big fellows, those who were in mind when the sugar fight of the century was widely advertised, are strangely quiet.

A week ago a representative of the Cuban government announced in New York that there had been an entire change in his government's attitude on the sugar tariff. It had come to realize, he said, that Cuba's interests lay with those of the American beet sugar producers. This was, indeed, a decided change.

Word has subsequently come that Ambassador Ferrara's return to Washington from Havana had been delayed in order that he could be given new sugar instructions.

Smoot Has One Plan.

Just what remarkable arrangement could have been worked out to be so pleasing all around is yet to be determined. It is believed that the President, Senator Watson and Senator Smoot know. The last named has a

FOUR CAPITALS MOVE TO AVERT RUSS-SINO WAR

Brilliant Russian military leader said to have been recalled from his vacation due to the crisis in Russo-Chinese developments.

Countries Are Reminded of Kellogg Treaty Obligations.

ISSUES AT DEBATE HELD JUSTICIABLE

France Is Intermediary in the Transmission of Representatives.

ATTITUDE OF RUSSIA IN DISPUTE PRAISED

Commissar Declares Peace Pact Is More Precious Than Money Loss.

Measures have been taken by the United States, the British Empire, France and Japan, signatories to the four-power pacific treaty of 1921, to remind the Chinese and Russian governments of their obligations and responsibilities under the Kellogg-Briand pact for the renunciation of war.

The communication which has gone forward to Pekin and Moscow includes not only this reminder, but a statement that while authentic information as to the causes of the present dispute between the Soviets and the Nationalist government is lacking, yet enough is known to make it clear that the issues are justiciable, and as such eminently submissible to arbitration.

At the State Department this morning it was made known that the exchanges leading up to this friendly action had been taken by Secretary of State Stimson in concert and consultation with the ambassadors of Great Britain, France and Japan in Washington.

France Is Intermediary.

The French government, it was stated, was the channel of communication with Moscow, doubtless through the Russian representative in Paris, and appreciation was expressed of the promptitude and cordiality with which M. Briand, the French foreign minister, had consented to act as intermediary. It was not only a recognition on his part of the obligations arising out of the four-power pacific treaty, but a welcome opportunity to put to the test the peace pact of which he was coauthor with former Secretary of State Kellogg.

The overtures toward peace made by the four powers, with the United States in the lead, are contemplated in the second article of the four-power treaty, whose negotiation was announced to the world at a plenary session of the Washingtonconference December 10, 1921. The treaty was signed by the powers "with a view to the preservation of the general peace and the maintenance of their rights in relation to their insular possessions and insular dominions in the region of the Pacific Ocean." And the article in question is as follows:

"If the said rights are threatened by the aggressive action of any other power, the high contracting parties shall communicate with one another fully and frankly in order to arrive at an understanding as to the most efficient measures to be taken, jointly and separately, to meet the exigencies of the particular situation."

Stimson Has Been Busy.

Secretary Stimson has had frequent conferences with the Ambassadors of Great Britain, France and Japan during the last few days, to secure an agreement to use the quadruple authority established by the treaty, and arrange that M. Briand should be the medium of contact with Moscow, the Soviet government not being recognized by the United States. The terms of the reminder to Moscow and Peking, with its reference to the Kellogg treaty and its suggestion of arbitration, were mutually agreed upon.

In official circles this international action in the interest of peace is regarded as having a double significance,

CHINA SENDS FORCE TO DEFEND RAILWAY

Reports That Border Clashes Have Occurred Are Still Unconfirmed.

CENSORSHIP VEIL DRAWN

Peiping, China, July 19 (A.P.).—Chinese reinforcements were advancing today toward Pogranichnaya, border point marking the eastern terminus of the Chinese Eastern Railway, according to dispatches reaching here.

An infantry brigade and an artillery regiment was reported to have left Kirin on special trains while 1,500 soldiers from the vicinity of Harbin were also sent.

Unconfirmed reports were that Chinese and Russian troops already had clashed and that the Russians had "captured" Pogranichnaya. Since the actual town of this name is in Russian territory, it was assumed that the reports were intended to indicate either that Chinese had been expelled from the town or that the Russians had extended their control along the railway beyond the border.

A strict censorship prevails on all messages from Manchuria.

Dispatches told of Russian merchants in Harbin offering their goods and stores at any price there following upon proclamation of martial law. Few takers appeared, which added to their consternation.

Military observers here believe that in event of war Russia is not likely to make a frontal attack, but to strike in a quarter where the blow would less likely be expected.

These observers are agreed that the Russians would not attempt an early occupancy of the entire Chinese Eastern Railway System in Manchuria, which is the bone of contention, owing to the time necessary to consolidate positions, supplies and communications.

It was believed more likely that the Russians would strike further into Mongolia or into Sinkiang (Chinese Turkestan), occupying territory to be

Allen Requests Injunction Against Brother Policemen

Officer Often in Court Wants Other Members of Force Restrained From Making Petty Charges. Illegal Parking Complaint Dismissed by Judge.

After a traffic charge made against him by a fellow policeman had been dismissed by Judge Isaac R. Hitt, in the United States branch of the Police Court, Policeman Robert J. Allen, attached to the Third Precinct, requested the court to enjoin the members of the police force "from continually haling him into court on petty charges." Judge Hitt, who tried the case after Judge R. E. Mattingly, in Traffic Court, had refused to hear it because of possible prejudice, told the policeman that any injunction must come from the District Supreme Court.

Allen was charged in a warrant sworn to by Policeman B. F. McAllister, also of the Third Precinct, with having parked his automobile between the curb and loading platform in front of the Mayflower Hotel on the afternoon of July 1. The warrant was sworn out on July 10, Policeman McAllister explaining that the delay was occasioned by futile efforts to locate Allen by telephone to appraise him that the charge had been booked.

Allen denied the charge. He told the court that he is on leave of absence from the police force and on the afternoon of July 1 was at the office of a real estate firm in Clarendon, Va., where he is temporarily employed.

He attempted to prove that the charge was the result of animus, but the court refused to permit introduction of such evidence. Allen then told the court: "I have been before the Police Trial Board six times and this is my eighth appearance in Police Court on petty charges, and I want to prove to your honor that there is something radically wrong somewhere."

Allen told the court that policemen made charges against him so that they could get their names on the front pages of the newspapers. McAllister jumped up at this point and told the court that he did not give the story of Allen's posting collateral to the papers, but that he noticed it was on the front page of one paper.

Judge Hitt declared that if "Policeman McAllister is trying to frame Po-

Frail Girl, 12, Kills Father Who Kept Family in Terror

Child Grabs Big Revolver When Called to His Room in Mother's Absence; Is Held on Technical Charge of Manslaughter.

Keyport, N. J., July 19 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Catherine Crawford, a frail child who is not quite 13 and looks about 10, seized the big .38 caliber revolver of her father, George, in her tiny hands this morning in their home here and shot him through the heart.

The killing revealed a sordid, pitiful tale of a family living in terror of a brutal, degenerate father, who kept his wife silent by a threat of murder.

When Prosecutor John J. Quinn heard the story of mother and daughter at Freehold, he held the girl on a technical charge of manslaughter and arranged that she be released in $2,500 bail. The grand jury will hear her tale of self-defense next Thursday. Detectives took mother and daughter home so that they could get some clothes, and then took them to an unspecified place where they might remain in seclusion.

Crawford was a county constable, a stocky, well-built man of 39. From time to time he collected fees for making arrests and serving warrants. At one time he attained a reputation of laying traps for speeding motorists and collecting fees for the arrests.

But for the past year, according to his son, William, he hadn't made much money and spent most of what he did make for drink. He beat his wife and twice knocked William cold. The mother sent her eldest daughter away to work, because she was not safe. Three times little Catherine had terrifying experiences.

Two days ago Mrs. Crawford got a job in a cloak factory at Freehold and this morning left early. Crawford still lay abed, as did William, Catherine, Myrtle, 11, and George, 8.

"Daddy called me to his room and asked me to lock the door," said Catherine. "I didn't want to. He said he'd lock it himself and started to get out of bed. I took the revolver off the dresser and shot him in the stomach. He ran out in the hallway and shouted for my brother and fell.

"Then I ran over to Mrs. Walling's house and phoned to mother and told her what I had done to daddy. She cried, too."

NEWS of SUBURBAN Washington and the Surrounding States

Appears on Pages 3 and 18 of Today

It is the first instance on public record of resort to the four-power Pacific treaty, which when it went into effect terminated the Anglo-Japanese alliance and it is the first actual test of the value and possible efficiency of the general pact for the renunciation of war.

No intimation has yet reached Washington of the effect which the appeal to Moscow and Peking may have, but there is much confidence that it will succeed in averting hostilities and in securing the reference of the dispute over the Chinese Eastern Railway to a court of arbitration.

It is recalled that on the eve of the opening of the Pan-American conference on conciliation and arbitration, news reached Washington of a break between Bolivia and Paraguay on the subject of their possessory rights in the Gran Chaco region. Officials point out that the anxiety then caused was more than compensated for by the greater reality and importance it lent to the work and to the decisions of the conference. Similarly, it is hoped that an early promise of peaceful settlement of Russo-Chinese differences may give new actuality to the Kellogg treaty.

Feel War Will Be Averted.

The feeling here today is that war between Russia and China will be avoided.

Senator William E. Borah speaking as a friend of the Russian government, said: "Russia has from the time she signed the Kellogg pact recognized its binding force. She was the first nation, and long before the pact had been ratified by leading nations, to propose to put it into practical effect with reference to her affairs with Poland. And from the beginning of this present controversy with China she has called attention to the Kellogg pact and recognized her obligations under it. If the press dispatches are correct, yesterday Russia officially declared that there would be no war and again called attention to the Kellogg pact.

"I hope and I believe, as I said some days ago, that the controversy will be adjusted."

Senator Borah declared that he regretted very much that the Washington Government was not able to communicate with Russia directly instead of through another nation.

Representative Porter (Republican), of Pennsylvania, chairman of the House committee on foreign affairs, said he has always been extremely difficult to get the real facts in regard to the present Russian government. All the facts I have been able to obtain indicate a sincere desire on the part of the Soviet government to outlaw war. The present action is a most satisfying evidence of their dominant aim.

Congratulates Russia.

"They are to be congratulated on translating into deeds what they have been advocating for years. The occasion is very auspicious. The application of the Kellogg-Briand pact is certainly most gratifying. It indicates that after all we have developed a means of outlawing war."

That high Government officials here believe there is no serious danger of actual conflict between Russia and China is demonstrated by the fact that Secretary Stimson, Joseph P. Cotton, Undersecretary of State, and other State Department officials, left here early this afternoon with President Hoover for his fishing camp in Virginia, where they will remain over Saturday and Sunday, returning to the city Monday morning.

Holds to Kellogg Part.

Moscow, U. S. S. R., July 19 (A.P.).—Jan Rudzutak who, next to Joseph Stalin, is the most influential political figure in Soviet Russia, today made a number of notable and important utterances to American correspondents who have accompanied the present American tour here.

He declared that Russia thought the Kellogg pact more precious than the loss of even $10,000,000 involved in the seizure of the Chinese Eastern Railway and said the Soviet government had no intention of declaring war on China.

He said the Soviet government was ready to send off to receive official or unofficial commissions on equal terms to discuss all conditions of recognition by either the United States or Great Britain and disclosed that the latter government already had offered reestablishment of normal diplomatic and trade relations on certain conditions. The Russian government had not yet formulated its reply. British recognition would not necessarily, he thought, influence the American attitude.

Ready to Pay.

His government was prepared, he said, to settle the $187,000,000 debt of the late Kerensky government either in money, goods or by lease of concessions. He believed some practical formula to settle the debt could be found. The Soviet government does not recognize, however, debts of the czarist government on principle.

The setting and circumstances of the interview, one of the frankest and most direct ever given by any member of the government of the communist state, were totally unlike those encountered by the correspondents in the United States.

Nineteen newspaper men were marshaled in Red Square by Alexander Gumber, of the Chase National Bank, and Leonid Serebriakoff, assistant commissar of railroads, and escorted past guards, who stood with drawn bayonets, through the gates of the Kremlin, Russia's holy of holies, with only their pencils and pens as counterweapons.

Here, in one of the former palaces of the czar, the correspondents found a smiling, soft-spoken, alert, keen-minded man of 42 years ready to speak to them. This was Rudzutak, commissar of ways and communications and a member of the Soviet political hierarchy known as the Polit Bureau. He is also vice president of the Council of Commissars of Soviet Russia.

Reporters Fire Questions.

While the Americans fired questions at the patient and accommodating commissar for two hours, they partook of caviar sandwiches, coffee and cigarettes provided by their ever-hospitable Russian hosts. Symbols of Russia's past and present were visible. Through the palace windows could be seen under the glistening rays of the sun the gold-domed church in which the czar and his family worshiped and beyond were the machine guns and cannon with which the Soviet commissars would be defended in event of an assault on the Kremlin.

Rudzutak estimated that the suspension of trade relations with China and the seizure by China of the Russian interests in the Manchurian Railways would involve a loss of between $5,000,000 and $10,000,000. He declared, however, that Russia thought the Kellogg pact, to which it is signatory, of much greater value.

Rudzutak said that American recognition was essential to the economic development and prosperity of Soviet Russia and that relations between the two countries could not logically be based on casual commercial transactions, even though these amounted to $100,000,000 annually. The relations must rest on a permanent diplomatic basis.

Soviet Anxious to Negotiate.

He declared the Soviet government to be prepared to discuss terms of settlement of all outstanding questions between the two countries, even with unofficial representatives of the American Government if Washington chose to send them here in that capacity. The Soviet was equally prepared to dispatch a commission to the United States, but the invitation must come from Washington.

While affirming that the Soviet Union had no intention of declaring war on China, he maintained that it would be obliged to strengthen the Russo-Chinese frontier in order to protect Soviet citizens and property and to offset the irregular army which he alleged was now being recruited by the Chinese from the ranks of the white Russians and others.

CHINA-RUSS DISPUTE ECHOES IN NEW YORK

Soviet Sympathizers Raise Rumpus Before Chinese Consulate.

TWELVE ARE ARRESTED

New York, July 19 (A.P.).—The threatened war between China and Russia had a repercussion here today when several hundred Russian sympathizers gathered in front of the Chinese consulate in Astor place and raised such a rumpus that police reserves were required to disperse them. Eight men and four girls were arrested.

The demonstrators, men and women, bearing placards and shouting "down with the Chinese," gathered in the street shortly after the noon hour and when traffic policemen in the vicinity were no longer able to keep the crowd in order, a riot call was sent into the Mercer street station.

Police reserves were met with jeers and hisses and when the crowd ignored orders to move, several scuffles followed. No one was reported injured, however, and when police started forcing the nearest standard bearers into patrol wagons, the crowd dispersed.

Among those arrested was William W. Weinstone, secretary of the Workers Communist Party and candidate for mayor of New York on his party's ticket.

Members of the staff of S. S. Young, the Chinese consul general, sat in their offices on the sixth floor of 13 Astor place, quite unperturbed while the crowd milled in the street below.

No attempt was made to enter the building, the crowd being satisfied with remaining below and waving their banners and shouting.

Of the four girls held, the oldest is 19 and one, Edith Kaplan, gave her age as 15. The latter was turned over to the children's society. The girls said they were members of the Young Communist League.

Another participant of the demonstration who fell into the hands of police, was William James Moo, 14-year-old Chinese. Moo said he was a member of the Chinese Food Workers Association which is in sympathy with the communist cause.

"Defend the Soviets," "Down With China," "Down With Police Brutality," "We Protest the Part of the International Powers Ostracising Russia," were some of the banners held aloft.

Weinstone, before his arrest, said that representatives of the communist Students' Leagues, the Chinese Workers Party, the Amalgamated Food Workers and the Young Communists League took part in the demonstration.

Rose Barron, secretary, and Jacques Buitenkant, counsel, of the international labor defense, called at the police station and offered aid to the prisoners who were charged with disorderly conduct.

CHINA SENDS FORCE TO DEFEND RAILWAY

held as a club for negotiations seeking release of the Chinese Eastern.

By the agreement reached at Mukden in 1924 the Russians recognized Outer Mongolia as an integral part of China, but Russian influence for three years gradually has increased so that Mongolia to all intents and purposes is part of the Soviet Union. It was pointed out that foreigners now must gain permission of the Soviet government to visit Urga, capital of Outer Mongolia. Urga is under the political sway of Moscow as well as being headquarters for Mongol troop divisions officered by Russians.

These opinions are based partly on information of military activities in recent months in the vicinity of Lake Baikal, where extensive telephone lines recently were built to connect Verkhne Udinsk, Missovak, Novo Seleginsk and Kiahta. This was believed to be due to the rapidly increasing importance of Urga, a Soviet center.

The headquarters of the eighteenth army corps is at Troitzkossavsk. To the west, Bilsk, south of Novo Nikolaevak has come into military importance due to the assembly of several thousand troops and a liaison regiment including a radio, telegraph and aviation unit.

Reports continued to be received today from various sources that extensive Russian troop concentrations were being pushed forward in the vicinity of Pogranichnaya and also at Manchulli, on the western boundary of Manchuria. The mobilization in the east was especially stressed.

Mukden reported that the traffic jam on the eastern section of the Chinese Eastern Railway was almost complete. It was estimated that more than 2,000 freight and passenger cars were blocked near Pogranicyinaya. The Chinese have prevented any trains from passing east of that point since last Sunday and the Russians, anticipating severance of relations with China, have refused to return railway cars in their territory.

Manchuli Reported in Peril.

Manila, July 19 (A.P.).—Japanese press dispatches from Nanking tonight said Gov. Chang Hsueh-Liang of Manchuria had telegraphed Nanking for instructions in view of the fact that "Soviet troops since morning had apparently commenced a positive movement placing Manchuli in great danger."

Manchuli had previously been reported from Osaka, Japan, sources as "captured" by Russian troops, but some confusion existed in the report, and the day failed to bring confirmation of it. The Nanking dispatches to Manila did not mention the hour at which Gov. Chang's message was sent.

Japan Still Marks Time.

Tokyo, July 19 (A.P.).—The Japanese cabinet was understood today to have decided that positive Japanese measures as yet were unnecessary in the rupture of diplomatic relations between Russia and China over the Chinese Eastern Railway. The cabinet heard a report on the crisis by foreign Minister Shidehara.

Meanwhile a policy of strict neutrality and watchfulness will be maintained. Several diplomats called on the foreign office today including counsel for Edwin L. Neville, of the American Embassy, and representative of the British and Italian Embassies. It was understood that all discussed the situation in Manchuria.

Official quarters doubted rumors of frontier skirmishes relayed by Japanese correspondents at Harbin, none of which was confirmed. Official reports did confirm dispatches saying that Soviet airplanes had made demonstrations over border towns and also that Soviet gunboats had moved down the Amur River to its junction with the Sungari.

The Japanese general staff estimated that the Russian concentration opposite Manchuli was equivalent to one division with cavalry, while an army corps, based at Habarovsk, was moving its main strength in the direction of Pogranichnaya.

Skirmishes Believed Likely.

Military authorities persist in their belief that war will be avoided, but admit the possibility of border skirmishes growing out of the proximity of opponents, some of whom are none too well disciplined. It was learned that no measures have yet been taken for the protection of Japanese in north Manchuria, who were estimated at 5,000 in the Chinese Eastern Railway zone exclusive of the Chang Chung terminus where 15,000 are protected by the northernmost Japanese post of the Manchurian garrison.

The Japanese postoffice has stopped forwarding mails by way of Siberia and several thousand letters now held here will be rerouted by way of either the Suez Canal or America.

The Rengo News Agency relayed from Harbin a Chinese report that four Soviet gunboats had appeared at the confluence of the Amur and Sungari rivers on the northeast boundary of Manchuria and that three Chinese gunboats were sent to reinforce three already in that vicinity. The Soviet consulate staff has completed withdrawal from Pogranichnaya. Eleven Soviet planes made a demonstration flight over the border town today.

MONON ELIMINATED FROM B. & O. PLANS

I. C. C. Notified That Roads Owning Line Object to Merger Scheme.

HISTORY OF PROPOSAL

Baltimore, July 19 (A.P.).—The Baltimore & Ohio has notified the Interstate Commerce Commission it is willing without prejudice to withdraw the Monon from its consolidation plan, it was announced at the road's general offices today. The change was because the Monon and the roads jointly owning the majority of its stock would not consent, the announcement said.

The Baltimore & Ohio communicated its intention to Commissioner Meyer, chairman of division four of the Interstate Commerce Commission, advising him of its willingness to withdraw the Monon from the consolidation plan and saying that when the hearing time came it would amend its application.

In this connection the road explained its reasons for including the Monon in its proposed system, referring to recommendations of Prof. W. Z. Ripley, on the commission's tentative consolidation plan.

That recommendation, approved by the commission in its 1921 plan, assigned the Monon (Chicago, Indianapolis & Louisville) to System No. 3, the Baltimore & Ohio system, because the Baltimore & Ohio system would be strengthened at its western end and because of an identity of interest manifested in joint maintenance of passenger and freight business between Cincinatti and Chicago in the past.

The communication said the Baltimore & Ohio had assumed that the Southern Railroad and Louisville & Nashville, joint owners of the Monon, and the Monon itself would not oppose its inclusion in the proposed Baltimore & Ohio system. However, having been advised that the joint owners would not sell any of their Monon stock to the Baltimore & Ohio or agree to a lease or any other form of control, the road informed the commission that no useful purpose would be served by a hearing on including the Monon and that all the companies interested should be spared the expense of preparing for such a hearing.

Harrisonburg Gas Franchise Is Let

Consumers Utilities Co. Wins Contract With Bid of $505.

Special to The Washington Post.

Harrisonburg, Va., July 19.—The Consumers' Utilities Company which operates plants at Staunton and Winchester, today was awarded a gas franchise for Harrisonburg at a special meeting of the City Council. The company's bid of $505 for the franchise was the only one submitted, and the concern was instrumental in having the city council offer the gas franchise for sale.

Work on the project will be started immediately with hopes of having the system in operation by Christmas. Between $200,000 and $250,000 will be expended here, all of this sum being outside capital.

This is the first private utility to be granted a franchise in Harrisonburg, the city operating the electric and water systems as municipal enterprises.

Screams of Child, Yellow Shoes, Save Lives in Wreck

Parents Awakened by Girl's Cries as Water Swirls Into Coach; Change of Berths Proves Fortunate For Woman Passenger.

Denver, Colo., July 19 (A.P.).—Screams of a child, a pair of yellow shoes and a change of berths were factors in saving the lives of six persons in the wreck of the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific passenger train near Stratton yesterday.

Mary Margaret Waddle, 6, cried out in alarm when water swirled about her, waking her parents and a sister, and they all reached safety from their coach, which was on one side of the creek, half in and half out of the water into which part of the train plunged. The Waddles are from Kansas City.

Mrs. L. L. Baker, of Herington, Kans., had been assigned a berth in a car but later was notified by the Pullman conductor she had to move two cars back in the train. The berth she originally occupied was one that was submerged.

On his way forward to visit a porter in the Cape Porpoise, the car that was completely submerged, Garland Edwards, of Chicago, stopped. His attention was caught by a pair of brilliant yellow shoes. Between the shoes and the Cape Porpoise were two coaches. Edwards put the talking desire behind and took the shoes back to shine them. The train was wrecked and he was safe in a coach, two back of the submerged one.

A mother's thoughts for the safety of her son was the first impression Mrs. Walter Kolasa, of Berkeley, Calif., remembered after the wreck.

One of the heroines of the wreck was Maudie Taylor, 14, of Mount Harris, Colo., a cripple for many years. Maudie was on her way home from the Shriner's Hospital for Crippled Children at Minneapolis, where she had become able to walk. Her long period in hospitals had served her well—she was able to "play nurse." She was one of the first dressed and out, lending a helping hand where she could.

To Mrs. A. Kampf, of New York, mother of H. Kampf, of Denver, the wreck seemed "like a horrible dream," she said. She was uninjured. Misses Elizabeth Burke, of West Depere, and Dorothy Blainey, of Green Bay, Wis., praised the bravery of their fellow passengers. Though fatigued and shaken by their own work and experiences, they refused to glorify themselves, but commented on the calm way every one else acted.

FRENCH EVOLVE WAY TO PASS DEBT PLAN

Separate Deputies Act Would Authorize Payment Only From Reparations.

CITE ITALY AS PRECEDENT

Paris, July 19 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—A formula for ratification of France's war debt to the United States in such a manner that France will not be committed to payments if Germany falls down on her reparations payments appears to have been evolved by the Chamber of Deputies.

As an outcome of the prolonged, bitter struggle between opponents and proponents of unconditional ratification of the Mellon-Berenger agreement for funding France's debt to America, ratification is expected to take the following form:

The French government will ratify the debt accord with the authorization of Parliament. Then Parliament will pass a separate act providing the means of payment—which will be exclusively from reparations paid by Germany.

Deputy Pietri, who resigned as reporter of the finance commission when that body insisted upon attaching reservations to the act of ratification itself suggested this solution of the difference between the Poincare government and the deputies of the Radical-Socialist parties, the foes of unconditional ratification.

He suggested that this procedure would be acceptable to the United States, which it is known, would not approve any ratification in which reservations were incorporated. His assumption is based upon the fact that Italy recorded reservations in a similar manner without including them in the ratification act proper.

Italy Pattern Followed.

February 14, 1926, Italy ratified the agreement for payment of her war debts to Washington. Then on March 3 Italy created by decree a sinking fund from which the war debt payments were to be made. The receipts of this sinking fund were to come entirely from German reparations.

Pietri told the chamber today "America knew of Italy's move, and the reservation was clear, but no objection was raised in the United States Senate."

The formula finally adopted by the French Parliament may prove different in detail from that employed by Italy, but it will be close to the Italian idea in substance.

There was an inclination in the chamber today to drop the motion of the finance commission for incorporation of reservations in the act of ratification and to adopt some conciliatory method of ratification which would, however, leave no question of France's intention of paying her war debts from reparations receipts.

RAILROAD WRECKAGE YIELDS NINE BODIES

Several Found Washed Up by Deep Creek Into Which Pullman Plunged.

TO OPEN INQUEST TODAY

Stratton, Colo., July 19 A(.P.).—After more than 36 hours spent in searching wreckage, railroad officials announced late today the death toll in the wreck of the Colorado Express, a westbound Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific train yesterday, 3 miles west of here, was nine dead and one missing. Service over the line is expected to be resumed between 9 o'clock tonight and midnight. Crews have nearly completed a new bridge.

A Pullman, which was plunged into a creek swollen to flood stage by a sudden and severe cloudburst which had weakened approaches to a 50-foot bridge, was thoroughly explored and all bodies removed. Other bodies were found in fields some distance from the wreck, where they had been carried by the high water.

An officially announced list of dead follows:

Mary MacDonald, West Palm Beach, Fla.; George F. Carlie, New York; Mrs. George F. Carlie, New York; Mrs. Ben Lewis, Memphis, Tenn.; Henry Lewis, 11 years old, Memphis, Tenn.; Mrs. Jennie Foltz, Memphis, Tenn.; T. B. Johnson, Birmingham, Ala.; two negro porters, unidentified.

Miss Julia Carlie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George F. Carlie, was reported with her parents on the train, but no trace had been found of her late today and she was listed by the railroad as missing.

An inquest probably will be opened tomorrow at Burlington, Colo., the county seat. Coroner O. R. Penney is awaiting further identification of some of the victims by relatives and friends who are expected to arrive at Burlington tonight.

Chamber Planned In Prince William

Development of County Industrially Is Aim of Business Men.

Special to The Washington Post.

Manassas, Va., July 19.—The first step in the organization of a Prince William County Chamber of Commerce was taken tonight when a group of citizens of the county met in Manassas to outline a plan and appoint temporary committees.

Under the plan the chamber will be organized and carried on by the merchants and business men of the entire county. Each magisterial district will be represented by a vice president, each district will have three representatives on the board of directors, and the membership will be county-wide.

A meeting has been called for next Friday night, to be held in Manassas, at which time officials of the United States Chamber of Commerce will attend to outline some of the phases of work which a county chamber may undertake. Following the meeting permanent officers will be elected and the Prince William Chamber of Commerce will begin to function. While no definite arrangements have been made, it is expected that soon after getting under way a man familiar with the duties required of a business organization secretary will be employed to carry forward the work of developing the county industrially.

Child's Foot Mangled By Blade of Mower

Special to The Washington Post.

Leonardtown, Md., July 19.—Wilmer Bowles, 7-year-old son of Charles Bowles, a farmer living at Loveville, Md., was painfully injured by the blade of a mower Thursday.

The little fellow was standing near the horses that were hitched to the mower while an older brother went to the house to get a drink of water. Flies stung the horses and they started off, putting the mower into action. Before the boy could get out of the way the blade had caught his foot and crushed it. Dr. Camelier, of Leonardtown, rendered first aid and rushed the boy to Providence Hospital, where the mutilated member was removed this morning.

CLARKES RELEASED UNDER DOUBLE BAIL

Brothers, Whose Bank Failed for $5,000,000, Fingerprinted by Police.

TO BE TRIED NEXT WEEK

New York, July 19 (A.P.).—The three Clarke brothers, whose grandfather founded, 83 years ago, the private bank that failed for $5,000,000 under their management, today surrendered themselves to the police, were finger-printed and photographed for the rogues' gallery, arraigned on the State counts, and finally released with their bail double what it had been before.

With John F. Bouker, their partner of a little less than a year, they pleaded not guilty today before Judge Cornelius F. Collins in general sessions to an indictment returned yesterday by the New York County grand jury, charging them with having accepted deposits after they knew their bank was insolvent.

Trial was set, over the protests of their attorney, for next Wednesday, July 24. They are scheduled to go to trial in the Federal courts July 29.

The three Clarkes—James Rae, Philip L., and Hudson, jr., who already had posted $25,000 bail each after their indictment by the Federal grand jury, had to obtain $25,000 more apiece before they were released today. It was furnished by a surety company. Bail for Bouker, who waived immunity and appeared before the county grand jury, was reduced to $5,000 in the State courts. In Federal Court he was obliged to furnish the same amount as the Clarkes.

A hearing before John L. Lyttle, referee in bankruptcy, adjourned today until Monday afternoon, at which time the Clarkes who heretofore, on advice of counsel, have been reticent about their business deals, have promised to answer all questions put to them.

PRESIDENT AND G. O. P. ARE IN TARIFF ACCORD

carefully guarded sliding scale plan which he does not intend to let out until the proper time.

It is recalled that when the senator first announced he had this plan some time ago Ambassador Ferrara said that its acceptability to Cuba depended upon its application. If it were based on past low sugar prices, he said, it would work serious hardship upon Cuba but if applied on the basis of higher prices it might work out all right.

The prices seem to be getting higher. There has, in fact, been a steady increase for the last several weeks.

An alternative plan to the sliding scale is a flat 2 per cent tariff as compared with the 1.76 at present in effect and the 2.40 in the House bill.

Cuba Can Absorb Tariff.

If the sugar price continues to increase, it is pointed out, Cuban growers would have no trouble in absorbing this increased tariff.

To say that considerable of the fight will have been taken out of the tariff bill when the Finance Committee gets through with it, of course, overlooks the possibility that although the objectionable rates in the House bill will have been removed other objectionable ones may be inserted. The Finance Committee, it is pointed out, has gone over the entire ground covered by the House committee. So it is not wholly unlikely that when its bill is shaped up the tariff fight will be just as intense but on entirely different grounds.

There is this significant fact, however. It definitely develops that the Senate regulars are not framing their bill in opposition to the President. Recent developments, in fact, make ridiculous the suggestions of a few weeks ago that the President was really with the coalition on the tariff question, or at least that he leaned towards it.

Vote Was Effective Factor.

There may be and there may not be some things about the bill that will emerge from the committee that he will not like but then after all it will be a Republican bill, and Mr. Hoover is a Republican, not a Progressive or a Democrat. In the light of things as they stand at present it is amazing that there was once the suggestion that he might veto the bill.

There will be many, undoubtedly, to claim the credit for the modification of the House bill, assuming it does not carry new items just as bad. Representations that Mr. Hoover was displeased had something to do with it, of course. The most effective thing, however, was that 39 to 38 vote on the Borah resolution just before the recess.

Senator Pat Harrison of Mississippi, commenting on President Hoover's request that the Tariff Commission give him a report of Democrats who had sought favors of the Tariff Commission, said that the Democrats would "neither be bludgeoned or browbeaten in the tariff controversy."

That the President had made the request was, incidentally, denied at the White House by an unquotable spokesman.

The report will be ready in about a week.

Woman Aviator in Iowa On Flight From Albany

JONES LAW CALLED INVALID BY COUNSEL

Simultaneous Attacks, Made in Two Courts, Point to Dangers.

DECISIONS ARE WITHHELD

Chicago, July 19 (A.P.).—Constitutionality of the Jones prohibition enforcement law was attacked almost simultaneously today in Federal courts in Omaha and Chicago. Decision in both cases was withheld.

George Meacham, president of the Omaha Bar Association, representing twenty defendants in liquor cases, argued before Federal Judge J. W. Woodrough that if the Jones law is upheld "it opens the way for Congress to pass additional laws which may bring about complete abolition of the jury trial system."

Meacham's attack centered on the section of the law which reads: "It is the intent of Congress that in imposing sentence hereunder, courts should discriminate between the casual or slight violations, and habitual sales of intoxicating liquor or attempts to commercialize violations of the law."

This section, he said, takes from the jury the power of determining facts, and delegates legislative powers to the court.

The attack in the Chicago court of Federal Judge Charles E. Woodward, was in the form of a petition filed in behalf of Ira Goldman, Chicago druggist, who has started serving a one-year sentence on liquor charges to which he pleaded guilty.

The petition charges among other things that the law under which Goldman was sentenced is unconstitutional and void because it permits the courts to pass upon facts which heretofore have always been in the province of the jury, that the sentence was excessive, and that the court which tried and sentenced him was without jurisdiction.

Judge Woodward ordered the druggist brought into court July 30, when a hearing on the petition will be held.

Official Beats Up Son Of New Orleans Mayor

New Orleans, July 19 (A.P.).—Augustus Williams, recorder of mortgages of New Orleans, today beat up and threw out of his office Arthur O'Keefe, jr., son of Mayor O'Keefe, when he called on the recorder for an apology for the language used by Williams against the mayor at last night's open-air labor mass meeting.

O'Keefe told Williams that he came to demand a written apology on behalf of his father, who was ill. Williams was quoted as saying he would give him a sound beating instead if he did not get out of his office. The two then clinched and fought around the office and out into the corridor before they were pulled apart.

In his speech last night Williams ridiculed the mayor and commission council and accused them of favoring the Public Service in the street car strike.

BAPTIST ASSEMBLY WITNESSES PAGEANT

Sessions at Frederick Are Largely Attended; Dr. Spillman Talks.

TO ADJOURN TOMORROW

Special to The Washington Post.

Frederick, Md., July 19.—Notwithstanding threatening weather, the attendance at the Maryland Baptist Assembly at Braddock Heights today was large. The regular assembly meeting, led by Dr. B. W. Spillman, of the Southern Baptist Convention; the church administration and pastors' Bible conference, directed by the Rev. Dr. Joseph T. Watts; the woman's missionary union, in charge of Mrs. S. R. Barnes, and the Chautauqua meeting were well attended. The assembly will adjourn Sunday.

One of the features of the week was a pageant last night which about 40 persons, including many from a distance, took part in costume.

The play was an illustration of Bible study, depicting a woman searching for happines, beauty wealth and fame, but in the final analysis happiness was found only in service for others through the missionary cause. Miss Jeanette White, of Baltimore, an active worker in the Woman's Missionary Union, assumed the role of Everywoman, and Mrs. S. R. Barnes, Baltimore, also a member of the missionary union, represented the union and its field of endeavor.

The Listening Post

By CARLISLE BARGERON

SENSITIVENESS is one of the distinctive attributes of the Hoover administration and it may explain, in part, the need for so many secretaries. It would seem that one of them would have to devote his entire time to watching little items that appear in the newspapers and denying them.

A striking instance in mind is the denial of the story that the Marines were building the road to the President's Rapidan fishing camp. It was a story that went the rounds some weeks ago and if we are not mistaken, it was the Marine press agent who put it out, which would indicate that the Marines had no objection to taking the credit for doing the work. Modesty is not a weakness of the Marines at any rate.

But whether the Marines were building the road or not hardly affected the destiny of men, or even the President. If it affected him at all it did so favorably because when the sailors and soldiers read that the President had put the Marines to work they vowed then and there that he must be a pretty good President.

* * * *

BUT a White House statement yesterday would indicate that the President has felt these reports very keenly. The Marines are not building the road. Instead, Virginia convicts are doing it. The Marines did build the shacks which was, according to the statement, in the nature of routine Marine work.

And furthermore, Mr. Hoover was paying out of his own pockets for all of the work except the road, which is the business of the State of Virginia, the statement said.

But this denial is but one of many. Certainly, there has been no criticism of Mr. Hoover's week-end trips. Why, a summer home down there in Virginia was offered to him by the Government. It is as if there is some one always scanning the newspapers to pick out little items to deny. Sometimes they are so remote that even the newspapermen who read newspapers right thoroughly have never heard of the item at issue.

* * * *

MR. COOLIDGE was not this way. He seldom denied anything, and in so far as the small items, the light talk that went around about him, the digs and the brickbats; they rolled from him as the water rolls from the back of a duck. He just didn't care and Mr. Coolidge was a very healthy President.

Why, they tell one story attributed to Senator Glass that runs as follows:

The senator was asked what he thought of Mr. Coolidge.

"Well, I'll tell you," he is represented as saying in that slow drawl of his. "I knew him when he was governor of Massachusetts. I knew him better when he was Vice President and presided over the Senate and now that he is President I see him right frequently.

"You know, if you were to tell Mr. Coolidge that he knew anything about anything he would be the first one to laugh. He has a keen sense of humor."

Mr. Coolidge did have, at that.

BAILIFF HELD DRUNK IN PRINCE GEORGES

John Fairall Fined $1; Pistol User, in Quest of Robber, Kills Wrong Man.

FACES MURDER CHARGE

John Fairall, bailiff to the petit jury in the Prince Georges County Circuit Court at Upper Marlboro, yesterday was arraigned in Upper Marlboro branch of county police court on a charge of having been drunk and disorderly at the courthouse. Despite his plea that he had been suffering from an attack of vertigo, Judge J. Chew Sheriff imposed a fine of $1 and costs.

The bailiff was arrested Wednesday by Constable John Wilson and had been lodged in the county jail until the time of his trial. Constable Wilson said that he arrested Fairall because he feared that he would get hurt and declared that he was using loud and profane language in the courthouse yard. Wilson's testimony was corroborated by Deputy Sheriff Harry Robinson and County Policeman V. M. Nichols.

Judge Sheriff said in fining Fairall that he did not believe such old friends as the complaining officers would take such a step unless they were certain that it was necessary. He said that the court was extremely surprised and shocked at the appearance of Bailiff Fairall before the bar on such a charge.

Fairall said that he had been subject to spells of vertigo for several years and that under the influence of such spells he appeared to be drunk. He admitted, however, that occasionally he took a drink and that this might have been one of the times.

Because he believed he had been robbed of $7 on the previous night, Jeremiah Hawkins, colored, of Clinton, Md., yesterday purchased a pistol in Washington for $9 and then shot and killed the wrong man, Prince Georges County police reported last night.

Hawkins yesterday morning swore out a warrant for Rodger Green, colored, of Clinton, alleging that he had robbed him of $7 at a party the previous night. Yesterday evening about 7:30 o'clock he went to the home of Green's father, Frank Green, colored, 60 years old, apparently in an effort to collect his money from the Green youth. In the course of the altercation which followed, he fired the gun and the bullet missed the youth and struck the father.

Green, a helper on the farm of W. E. Penn, on which he lived, was taken to Casualty Hospital by Constable A. C. Thompson. He was pronounced dead upon arrival at the hospital. In the meantime County Policeman Frank Prince had arrested Hawkins, who was, charged with murder and held for action of the grand jury by Justice of the Peace Harry I. Anderson, of Forestville. Hawkins was lodged in the Upper Marlboro Jail. He is held without bond. Police say that he had been drinking. Hawkins admitted the murder, police say.

Bondsman Elmer Pumphrey, who was ordered to produce Richard Williams, colored, or have bond of $500 forfeited Wednesday at the Hyattsville branch of police court, reported to Judge Sheriff at police court yesterday that the man is under arrest and awaiting trial on a charge of larceny in the District Jail. Williams was scheduled to appear Wednesday to answer a charge of illegal possession of liquor.

The Prince Georges County Police Court collected fines and costs totaling $2,385.80 in criminal cases and $133 in costs in civil cases in the month of June, acording to the report of James W. Lawderdale, clerk of the police court. The county received $1,227.55 of this sum, the balance being fines in motor vehicle cases, which are forwarded to the commissioner of motor vehicles at Baltimore. The court disposed of 204 cases in June and had 12 cases pending at the end of the month. Included in the fines were $40 for State game law violations.

River Trade to Justify Appropriation Asked

Special to The Washington Post.

Petersburg, Va., July 19.—The Chamber of Commerce of Hopewell has sent out to all the business men and mercantile interests of that city a circular letter urging them to keep up the tonnage on the James River in order that Congress may realize the importance of the plan to spend between $8,000,000 and $10,000,000 on the proposed development of the river, especially between the cities of Hopewell and Richmond.

The chamber urges "the one thing that will keep the Government interested in the James River development more than anything else is the use of the river. It must be shown to the United States Government that present and prospective tonnage on the James River will justify the appropriation necessary to carry out this project. Therefore the business interests of the city are urged to build up the tonnage on the river as much as possible."

MONTGOMERY PLAN FOR COURT DECIDED

Augmented Committee Votes for Building to Cover Two City Squares.

IMPOSING VIEW IS AIM

An adequate courthouse to cover two squares, which will present an imposing view to tourists and others passing through Rockville was decided upon at the first meeting of the augmented courthouse committee which is preparing plans for the new Montgomery County courthouse.

The new courthouse will have a limestone front and will stretch across the present courthouse square and the square to the west of the present site, with Court street, now dividing the two squares, closed to become a part of the new site, it was decided.

The committee declared that it was strongly in favor of the action of the county commissioners in directing their counsel, the law firm of Cissel & Woodward, to begin condemnation proceedings to secure possession of the additional ground. It was decided to urge the county officials to hasten the proceedings in order that the ground can be purchased within the next 90 days.

The committee directed Delos Smith, consulting architect, to cooperate with Rossel Mitchell, the architect, in preparing plans for a new courthouse building which will be adequate to house the offices of the county government and at the same time do credit to the prosperity and standing of Montgomery County.

Expansion Space Provided.

Each office in the building will be so planned that it can be expanded to the rear when the business of the county again requires expansion of the courthouse.

The meeting was held at the courthouse in Rockville and lasted for nearly three hours. The members of the committee exhibited their hearty interest in the plans for the courthouse by their close attention to the various details explained to them and by their prompt agreement to the principal resolutions presented. All showed that they are desirous of producing a courthouse that will remain a memorial to the farsightedness of the committee.

The entire personnel of the committee, with the exception of one member, was present at the meeting. The absent member was Dr. Gilbert Grosvenor, of Bethesda, president of the National Geographic Society. His secretary answered the invitation which was mailed by Berry E. Clark, clerk to the county commissioners, and stated that Dr. Grosvenor is on his vacation.

Personnel of Committee.

The new committee is composed of: Dr., Benjamin C. Perry, of Bethesda, president of the board of county commissioners and chairman of the committee; Lacy Shaw, Silver Spring, vice president of the board of county commissioners; County Commissioner Claggett C. Hilton; Maj. E. Brooke Lee, speaker of the Maryland House of Delegates and county Democratic leader; Judge Robert B. Peter, of the circuit court at Rockville; Otho H. W. Talbott, Rockville attorney; Preston B. Ray, clerk of the circuit court; Berry E. Clark, clerk to the county commissioners; Robert G. Hilton, president of the Farmers Banking & Trust Co., of Rockville and chairman of the Democratic State central committee; Dr. Grosvenor, George P. Sacks, Chevy Chase; H. F. Taff, former mayor of Takoma Park; George M. Hunter, Rockville, president of the Montgomery County National Bank; Clyde E. Thomas, of Gaithersburg; Josiah Jones, of Olney and George E. Hamilton, of Bethesda.

The committee decided to meet again at the call of the chairman, Dr. Perry, when the architects have completed the plans for the building. Should any emergency arise prior to that time they also will be called to a meeting.

ing alliance between the newspapers and the established State government. This emancipation does not mean that the press of Virginia is not still prevailingly Democratic in its outlook and likely to be for some time to come, but it does mean that our newspapers are discarding the 'my party right or wrong' dogma and moving toward a position of complete independence from which, if a public emergency rises, they will train their guns on Democratic leaders.

"We need an outspoken and free press. Ordinarily we think of a free press in terms of immunity from legal impediments in print. It is time to think of it in its far more extra-legal implications. I make bold to suggest that what we need in Virginia and elsewhere in the South is not newspapers freer from legal restrictions, but newspapers freer from self-imposed inhibitions."

Klan Reticence Cited.

"All of us remember with what editorial reticence alternating with gentle wrist slappings most Virginia newspapers treated the revived Ku Klux Klan when nine years ago it sprang Minerva-like full panoplied, from the head of Emperor Simmons to embark on a celebrated mission of hate. The prelude to this final buckling on of the sword of condemnation and ridicule was a disheartening period of euphemistic allusions to 'masked mobs' and hooded orders and, worse than that, of pained silence. No law of God or man prevented us from dipping our pens into vitriol and cauterizing this infamy from the first day of its public appearance, but timid inhibitions held us in check. The same cycle of initial fear followed by timid criticism giving way finally to full-throated denunciation, was observable in the more recent controversy over the proposal to outlaw the teaching of the theory of organic evolution. In Virginia we were spared this legislative obscenity. It was a discouragingly long time before the press of Virginia joined with reservation in the fight against obscurantism that threatened any day to cross our own frontiers.

Culture vs. Industry.

"Today in Virginia an interesting debate is in progress between those who believe that it is possible for the South to retain the distinctive graces of its traditional culture despite the regimenting influence of the new industrialism and those who foresee the 'middlewesternizing'" of this section and its inevitable capitulation to the gospel of American arrivism. For the present the forces making for the second result seem to be in the ascendancy.

"There is work for a free press to do in a Commonwealth that has added in a single biennium $200,000,000 worth of new industries, but which still numbers more than 70,000 native adult white people who can neither read nor write, and a population of negro illiterates many times larger. There is work for a critical and intelligent press to do as long as we have in Virginia a proud city like Staunton permitting its public library to perish for want of appropriatons, but finding money in abundance for a new country club, and the spectacle of a great city like Norfolk, with an estimated $5,000 per day for gasoline alone, but unable after ten years of effort to accumulate a beggarly $300,000 for the building of a long planned museum of art, and the spectacle of the capital of Virginia, itself all asmoke with great industries, haggling over the cost of protecting a painfully achieved public library against being permanently shut away from the sun."

HOMESTEAD OF LEES MADE PUBLIC SHRINE

Historic Stratford Passes Into Hands of Memorial Foundation.

WAS ERECTED IN 1729

Fredericksburg, Va., July 19 (A.P.).—Stratford, ancestral home of the Lees in Westmoreland County, today, two centuries after it was started by its builder, Thomas Lee, passed from the ownership of the Lee family into the hands of a private group which will hold it in trust as a shrine for the American people.

The ceremonies marking the transfer of the property from its owner, Charles Stewart, to the Robert E. Lee Memorial Foundation, took place at the old estate. Mrs. Charles D. Lanier, of Greenwich, Conn., presented Mrs. Stewart a check for $40,000 to complete the first payment of $50,000 in the presence of a large assembly composed of persons from all parts of the country.

The invocation was pronounced by the Rev. Giles B. Cook, of Gloucester, surviving member of the staff of Gen. Robert E. Lee, while the principal commemorating address was delivered by Mrs. Lanier.

Others who made brief addresses were Mrs. Emerson Root Newell, acting chairman of the finance committee of the foundation; Otis Bland, representative in Congress from the first Virginia district; Mrs. Horace Vandeventer, of Tennessee, and Mrs. Granville C. Valentine, of Richmond.

Telegraphic messages were read from Lady Nancy Astor, and her sister, Mrs. Charles Dana Gibson, chairman of the publicity committee of the foundation.

Stratford was built in 1729 by Thomas Lee, first native-born colonial governor of Virginia, who was assisted by Queen Caroline with money from the privy purse. It is said to be the only home in America in which were born two signers of the Declaration of Independence, Thomas Lee's two famous sons, Richard Henry Lee, and Lightfoot Lee, both signers of the document, having been born there.

chase to an automobile and arrested its five occupants, but not until, he said, they had broken several whisky containers.

McBurnett asserted the women were transporting a considerable quantity of liquor from Pine Bluff to Star City, where a county Confederate veterans' reunion was being held. When he finally halted the car the running board was covered with glass and liquor, he said. The five were held under bond on charges of possessing and transporting liquor.

The aged woman, Mrs. Ella Long, has been held court before, according to officials. In 1927 she was indicted three times. Two of the indictments, however, were dismissed in Circuit Court, and she paid a $50 fine on the third, which charged possession. The other indictments charged sale and manufacture. Mrs. Long's daughter, William B. Long and two sons and the wife of one were the others arrested.

Meanwhile S. M. Gurley, deputy prohibition administrator for western Arkansas, who announced at Texarkana yesterday that the arrest of fourteen women was only the beginning of the campaign to end bootlegging by women left with his squad of raiders for an unannounced destination. He said, however, it was in furtherance of his drive.

The two women arrested in Texarkana, Dot Benson, 20, and Mrs. Bonnie Fulmer, were soundly lectured by G. W. Ragland, justice of the peace, when they were arraigned before him on charges of possession of liquor.

"I'm tired of women appearing before me and begging for mercy simply because they are women," he said. "From now on I'm going to treat them as men. They smoke cigarettes, hold men's jobs and otherwise act as men."

Detroit, July 19 (A.P.).—Three alleged women liquor distillers and their "hired man" were arrested by Federal prohibition officers here this afternoon. The officers destroyed a 500-gallon still and a quantity of mash which they said they found at their home.

The arrests and discovery of the still followed the halting of two girls when officers noticed the rear of their automobile sagging suspiciously. They said they discovered the rear of the car filled with 1-gallon jugs of moonshine. Going to the address given them by the girls, they said, they found the still in operation under direction of a third girl and a man.

The girls are Bella Burns, Margaret Mayton and Nellie Sleich, while their alleged employe is Charles Goldfarb. Miss Sleich and Goldfarb are said by officers to have been operating the still when they arrived. All four will be arraigned before a United States commissioner.

which is so closely associated with Washington has suffered. For the first six months of 1929, it was learned, 209,236 persons have passed through the gate of Mount Vernon. For the same period of 1928, the total was 191,616. The increase was 17,620. On the same basis, it would be more than 35,000 for the entire year.

The investigation then was carried to the hotel men of Washington, particularly to those houses which make a more insistent bid for tourist trade. Here again, The Post found that there was no indication that the National Capital is losing its attraction. Neither could the directors of the city's hotels see how the left turn for automobile traffic be given such weight as to prove a deterrent for the prospective visitor.

Hotel Managers' Opinions.

Hotel managers, it may be pointed out, make it their business to keep informed regarding not only the actual volume of their guest lists, but they are in a position also to know beforehand what, if anything, may be bothering the traveler to keep him away.

Russell A. Conn, manager of the Hamilton Hotel and former president of the Washington chapter of the Greeters of America, reported that his hotel is housing considerably more motor tourists this summer than last. Selecting the list of arrivals at random, Mr. Conn showed that on many days the number coming by automobile was exactly one-half the total arrivals.

"I can not believe that Washington is losing any of its attractions as a tourist center," declared Mr. Conn. "Speaking for my own hotel and from conversations with the executives of other hotels, I would say that there is an appreciable increase in the number of tourists, particularly those arriving by automobile. I have not received any comment regarding Washington traffic regulations from any one who was contemplating coming to the Hamilton. The closest approach to it has been an advance inquiry in a few instances regarding parking facilities, and they were provided satisfactorily."

At the Lee House, a similar condition prevails. Edward W. Martin, manager, stated that tourist patronage there is showing a consistent gain this year. In his opinion, it is destined to increase year by year.

Road Check on Arrivals.

Further light was thrown on the situation by J. L. Ford, manager of the Colonial Hotel, which keeps men posted at the main thoroughfares entering Washington to make a constant check on the number of cars coming into the city with foreign license tags. So far, he stated, there has been an increase this month, and, since August is the peak of the tourist visitation in Washington, the influx of tourists is expected to be appreciably more.

The Colonial's check on roads revealed:

There are from 750 to 850 foreign cars entering the city in one day at present. This number is expected to vary between 1,000 and 1,200 a day next month.

About 350 cars arrive from the West over the Rockville pike.

Approximately the same number comes in through Hyattsville.

There are 100 or more who arrive from the South.

Last year arrivals over the Baltimore road, for example, varied from 200 to 300. This summer they have frequently numbered more than 400 on some days.

That the motor tourist is coming to Washington in ever-increasing numbers was Mr. Ford's opinion. This comes about, he declared, from visitors having a pleasant stay in the National Capital and then going back home to tell their friends and influencing them to come here.

Garages Report Increase.

F. L. Bourne, assistant manager of the Raleigh Hotel, reported an increase of tourist trade there of 20 per cent over last year. He declared he did not believe there was anything that was preventing tourists coming to Washington.

Willard M. Kochenderfer, assistant manager of the LaFayette Hotel, said that from talking to other hotel men and garage officials, he would estimate the increase in the number of motor tourists at 50 per cent more than last year.

Even outside the hotels which receive a large number of tourists, business was found to be in a more flourishing condition. E. L. Pollio, assistant to the president of the Mayflower Hotel, stated that at the Mayflower the guest list this summer is 50 per cent greater than a year ago. He scouted the idea that traffic regulations would be sufficient to scare visitors away from the city. There is so much to be seen here, and, compared with other large cities, life is so comfortable, Mr. Pollio pointed out, that they will not permit any minor considerations to keep them away.

At the Arlington, which counts 95 per cent of its guests as tourists from the middle of June to mid-September, business likewise is showing gains, according to the manager, T. T. O'Keefe.

Like the hotels, the Washington garages also report that they are busier than ever. Several garage managers state that they have had a tremendous increase in the number of foreign cars brought to them for night garaging while their passengers were on sightseeing trips to Washington.

What Tourists Themselves Say.

Making the rounds of the hotels, The Post investigators made it a point to ascertain the attitude of tourists regarding the left turn regulation. While admitting it was different and confusing at first, and that until they had made the turn incorrectly, none could be found who thought it terrifying. One tourist who brought his family to see the National Capital in response to a direct question as to whether he would have stayed away had he known of the the left turn replied as follows:

"That is an absurd question. When a man makes up his mind to see the National Capital and has the time and money to gratify his desire, he is going to do it in spite of one or a dozen traffic regulations that are not what he regards as the best. No automobile club, nothing, in fact, could dissuade him. To think that it could is ridiculous."

Dissatisfaction with the left-turn regulation is not questioned. It exists especially, however, among motorists who have to deal with it from day to day rather than with motorists who come to the city for just a few days. In Wash

WINDS DELAY HOYT ON CLEVELAND FLIGHT

Covers About Half of Yukon Lap When He Is Forced to Turn About.

FUEL SUPPLY THREATENED

New York, July 19 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Capt. Ross G. Hoyt, of the Army Air Corps, who set out from Mitchel Field in his Curtiss Hawk pursuit biplane at 2:30 Thursday afternoon on a scheduled round trip 2-7hour solo flight to Nome, Alaska, was forced to return to Vanderhoff, British Columbia, while en route to White Horse, Yukon, this afternoon when he struck head winds which threatened a shortage of his fuel supply.

A message from the airman to Mitchel Field, received shortly after 5 o'clock this afternoon, stated he had returned to Vanderhoff after he had gone as far as Hazelton, British Columbia. He added that he would refuel at Vanderhoff and take off again at dawn for White Horse. This wil mean a delay of about twelve hours in the captain's original schedule, which called for his return to Mitchel Field at 2:30 Sunday afternoon.

Kept Strictly to Schedule.

Until he was forced to turn back, Capt. Hoyt had been maintaining to the minute the schedule he had set for himself before he started. He had covered the first leg of 100 3miles to Minneapolis in seven hours and twenty minutes, arriving on the dot at 10 o'clock Thursday night as he had said he would. He took off again after refueling and arrived in Edmonton, Alberta, Canada, 1,100 miles farther, at 6:4 this morning, Eastern daylight time, 1 m5inutes ahead of schedule.

He took off from Edmonton at 7:52 a. m. today for his next refueling point at White Horse, Yukon, 1,100 miles away, and his schedule called for his arrival there at 4 o'clock this afternoon. He had covered about half the distance to White Horse when he was forced to turn back and had flown about 2,700 miles.

Beyond White Horse the Army pilot will make refueling stops at Fairbanks, 500 miles from where he will fly to Nome, his last lap being another 500 miles. His schedule calls for 4 hours and 40 minutes for each of the 500-mile laps.

Averaged 140 Miles an Hour.

The Curtiss Hawk plane used by Capt. Hoyt is powered with a 600 horsepower Curtiss Conqueror motor and has a maximum speed of 180 miles an hour, with a cruising speed of 150 miles per hour. On his first two laps between Mitchel Field and Edmonton the airman had maintained an average speed of 140 miles an hour, completing 2,130 miles in 16 hours and 10 minutes.

The original schedule called for a total elapsed flying time of 30 hours 50 minutes for the one-way distance of 4,230 miles. The flier expected to stop six huors in Nome before hopping off on his return trip, but he may cut this time short in order to make up for time lost. The stop at Fairbanks will be omitted on the return trip.

INJUNCTION SOUGHT AGAINST POLICEMEN

liceman Allen he will have to give an accounting to his Maker." He said that the problem presented by one policeman testifying that a brother officer violated the law and the brother officer testifying that he did not violate the law was a knotty one.

He dismissed the charge, declaring that his action was based on a desire to give the defendant the benefit of the doubt and because of the delay in obtaining the warrant.

Allen then asked the court to enjoin the police force from molesting him and haling him into court on petty charges. Judge Hitt told him that the Police Court had no jurisdiction in such matters and referred him to the equity division of the District Supreme Court. Allen also asked the court to advise him as to what steps he could take other than by injunction. Judge Hitt told him that the court could not advise, but "can only caution." He cautioned the policeman to obey the laws and regulations of the Nation and the District.

Judge Mattingly in refusing to try the case against Allen in Traffic Court explained that the policeman had been before him on other occasions and that he had been accused of prejudice both for and against the defendant.

roads. A further increase was expected in this item.

While the actual amount of farm relief cost could not be estimated, Congress already has authorized $500,000,000 for this purpose. Of this amount $150,000,000 has been appropriated and is expected to be expended this year.

Natural growth of other agencies of government to keep pace with population and social needs also is expected to increase expenditures.

TOKYO-BOUND PLANE ARRIVES IN TACOMA

Lieut. Harold Bromley Makes Hop From Los Angeles in 3½ Hours.

WILL DARE PACIFIC SOON

Tacoma, Wash., July 10 (A.P.).—Completing a 1,100-mile nonstop flight from Los Angeles, Lieut. Harold Bromley brought his huge monoplane, the City of Tacoma, to earth at the Tacoma Municipal Airport at 6:40 p. m. today. He plans to take off within the next few days on a nonstop flight over the Pacific Ocean from Tacoma to Tokio, Japan.

Los Angeles, July 19 (A.P.).—Lieut. Harold Bromley, planning a nonstop flight from Tacoma, Wash., to Tokio, soared away on the first leg of his flight, Los Angeles to Tacoma, at 10:13 a. m. today.

The gleaming orange-colored monoplane carried 483 gallons of gasoline. Bromley expected to reach Tacoma by 5:30 p. m. The flier said he planned to leave Tacoma not later than next Tuesday.

"For two years," he said, "I have had this desire to prove to the world the Pacific can be conquered by a single-motored ship by a lone pilot I plan to reach Japan in 33 hours."

The City of Tacoma will carry 904 gallons of gasoline on the take-off for Japan. Bromley anticipated the fuel supply sufficient to carry him from 500 to 1,000 miles beyond Tokio.

Egyptian Prince Saved When Rocks Sink Yacht

The party, including three women, jumped into the sea and were rescued in an exhausted condition by a steamer bound for Trondjhem. The yacht's carpenter, who was drowned, was the only casualty.

BEHIND THE SCREENS

With NELSON B. BELL

Many, I dare say, will be interested and surprised to learn that Wheeler Oakman, one of the featured members of the cast in "On With the Show," which today enters its third consecutive week at the Metropolitan, was born in Fairfax County, Va., in 1890 and received his education in this city.

He is related to the late Fighting Joe Wheeler, of Civil War and Spanish-American War fame. His theatrical debut was as a juvenile in "Under Southern Skies." He toured for several seasons in "Strongheart" and "Checkers," in both of which he played the "heavy," and in 1912 went into pictures under Selig, playing the Broncho Kid in "The Spoilers," with William Farnum and Tom Santschi, which, curiously enough, was the first notable feature-length picture ever made. He also appeared in the Warner Bros. production of "The Lights of New York," the first all-talkie.

Joining the army in November, 1917, he served in France, receiving his discharge in January, 1919. Since that time he has appeared in support of Viola Dana, Priscilla Dean, Bessie Love, Annette Kellerman, Colleen Moore and many others.

Mr. Oakman has played semiprofessional baseball, is an enthusiast at golf and tennis and is the "dad" of the Beverly Hills "De Molay," the junior Masonic organization.

In tightening the cogs of his organization, so to speak, Harry Warner, of the indefatigable and justly celebrated family of brothers, is calling in all of his house managers from the cities of the hinterland for an interview in the New York home office. Instead of attempting to negotiate this large order through the medium of one huge mass meeting, he is selecting small groups for individual visits to the metropolis.

On Thursday and Friday of this week it came the turn of Fallas Broche, of the Metropolitan; Harry E. Lohmeyer, of the Earle; Stephen Eilbacher, of the Tivoli, and Robert Etris, of the Ambassador, of the Warner-controlled Stanley-Crandall circuit in the Capital, to tiptoe up on the carpet.

The group returned last midnight without casualty.

What the boys call "conglomerations" are again in order around the Palace. George Peters, recently made treasurer of the Keith house, has been advanced one more, this time to the post of assistant manager. George Pearson has been promoted to the treasurership.

While her tour of personal appearances at Loew's Columbia came to an end last night, there is a subterranean tip rumbling about town that Dolores Del Rio will remain in the Capital for several days longer, just to catch her breath.

Charles Hampden, a former popular member of the National Players, is appearing this week in an original prologue to the screening of William Boyd's latest starring vehicle, "The Leatherneck," at the Earle Theater. The atmospheric bit, so I am given to understand, not only permits Mr. Hampden the reading of some effective lines, but also embraces a song or two to which he lends a vibrant voice.

The report that "Pleasure Crazed," current at the Fox, was named after Mr. Meakin, who is vacationing at Atlantic City, is unfounded.

The wide-angle picture, photographed on oversize celluloid and projected upon a screen that occupies the entire proscenium opening of even the largest theaters, is practically an assured fact. Its general introduction into the commercialized motion picture theaters of the land is only a matter of time. And not so long a time, at that, the way things are progressing.

Some weeks ago this column reported at considerable length the results of the first experimental projection of a film made in the new manner in New York. Since that time, the process and its handling have been sufficiently developed to justify the adoption of a trade name by Paramount and an invitation screening by that company of a photoplay made by the new method.

The new type of picture is designated "Magnafilm" by Paramount and the particular one privately shown was thrown upon a screen 40 feet wide and 20 feet high—not so large by some 30 feet in each direction as the one upon which the first experiments were made.

Certain local interests have been quietly going into the matter of theater equipment to accommodate the new size pictures, these many weeks now. When the scheme is sprung commercially, Washington, as usual, will be in the van.

By the way, how are you getting on out at the house now that the wife is away?

FOUR PLANES SEEK ENDURANCE RECORD

St. Louis Robin Ends Seventh Day in Air; Sister Craft Up Since Wednesday.

LOUISIANA FLIERS ALOFT

St. Louis, July 19 (A.P.).—Approaching the end of their seventh day in the air, Dale Jackson and Forest O'Brine, piloting the endurance plane "St. Louis Robin" continued to cruise over the city tonight. At 6:17 p. m. Central Standard Time they had been up 155 hours.

In notes dropped today, the fliers said they were out to beat the world's endurance record of 246 hours, 43 minutes and 32 seconds, established July 12 by Loren Mendell and Roland Reinhart at Culver City, Calif. To do this they will have to remain aloft until next Tuesday afternoon. When the plane took off Saturday, officials of the Curtiss-Robertson Aircraft Corporation, sponsoring the flight, said it would be an endurance test for the motor and not an attempt to set a new world's record.

Jackson and O'Brine said, however, that they hope to stay up three weeks. "We are feeling like fighting cocks," said one note. "We have plenty to eat and sleep like tops, so what more does a fellow want?"

Today was "wash day" for the fliers. They washed their undershirts and hung them out on the "cat walk to dry."

A sister endurance plane, the "Missouri Robin," which went up at 10:33 a. m. Wednesday, also was still going strong tonight after having been in the air 56 hours at 6:33 p. m. It is piloted by Joseph Hammer and Gentry Shelton, who hope to outlast the crew of the "St. Louis Robin" and also set a new endurance record.

The planes cruise in the vicinity of separate airports at night to avoid possibility of a collision. Wheather conditions thus far have been favorable.

Shreveport, La., July 19 (A.P.).—W. Currie Sanders and Van Lear Leary, Louisiana aviators, were plugging away tonight in their Ryan monoplane "KWKH" toward a new sustained flight record and adding hours to their residence of two full days above the city.

They entered their third day in the air at 10:30 o'clock this morning. The plane had been in the air 57 hours at 7:30 o'clock tonight. Refueling contacts were made during the day without mishap.

Houston, Tex., July 19 (A.P.).—The fifth refueling of Houston's endurance plane, Billion Dollar City, was successfully executed late this afternoon, 52 hours after the craft took the air. Replenishing their fuel supply with approximately 125 gallons of gasoline, 5 gallons of oil and 1 quart, of grease, Pilots G. L. Loomis and Joe Glass signaled to refueling Pilots Earl Showalter and A. H. Billstrom that the motor was in perfect running condition. The plane is on its second attempt at the record, the first having failed after being twenty hours aloft due to motor trouble.

Youth's Nude BodyFound With Bullet Hole in Head

South Whitley, Ind., July 19 (A.P.). The body of Delmar Sheckler, 16, was found today by a searching party in a pasture within 40 rods of his home. He apparently had been murdered. The boy disappeared Sunday evening after attending a children's day program at a local church.

The body, with a bullet wound in the forehead, was lying face upward and was unclothed. Part of the clothing had been burned and the rest was on some bushes nearby. The boy's rifle, which he had left in the woods near his home before going to church, was near the body. Coroner O. F. Lehmdert and Sheriff J. H. Haynes are investigating the case.

Fliers to Rome Leave Cherbourg for America

Cherbourg, France, July 19 (A.P.).—Capt. Lewis Yancey and Roger Q. Williams, American transatlantic aviators, sailed for home tonight aboard the liner Republic.

Jean Assolant and Rene Lefevre, French comrades of the Americans at Old Orchard, Me., while the two airplanes were waiting for the eastward transatlantic flight, were among the big crowd on hand to bid the Americans good-by.

BRITISH COTTON MEN FAIL TO END DISPUTE

Parley Called by Woman Labor Minister Ends in Sudden Collapse.

SHE PLANS NEW MOVE

Manchester, July 19 (A.P.).—Margaret Bondfield, British minister of labor, faces a new deadlock in the cotton industry dispute which she tackled when 800,000 workers refused to accept notice of 12½ per cent reduction in wages.

Through Miss Bondfield's efforts 140 delegates representing workers and employers met at the ministry of labor in London today, but the conference collapsed almost immediately after the proceedings opened. The employers refused the demand of the workers' delegates that the order for wage reduction, effective July 29, be withdrawn as a condition of negotiations. Today's brief meeting was secret, and no labor ministry officials attended.

The women cabinet member vigorously tackled the wage dispute in the cotton industry, with its immense potential dangers for unrest and disturbance in industrial England, and it is not believed that today's failure will be accepted without new efforts to bring the disputants together.

In her present task Miss Bondfield has received cordial support and good wishes from all sides of British politics.

Men Who Slew Foreman Are Shot Dead by Posse

Greenup, Ky., July 19 (A.P.).—Two negroes were shot and killed today by a posse after they had slain John O. Silvey, 30, railroad construction foreman, of Huntington, W. Va., at Limeville, near here.

Silvey had ordered three negroes from property of the Chesapeake & Ohio Railroad. Later they hid behind a signal tower and shot him. A posse was formed and the negroes were found along the Ohio River, preparing to cross. Members of the posse, headed by Greenup police and composed chiefly of railroad workmen, fired and killed two of the fugitives. The third escaped. None of them was identified.

Today's True Detective Story

By VANCE WYNN

The Old Cab Driver

IN THE early part of 1900 the officials at Scotland Yard received reports of an unusually large number of robberies in the wealthier part of London. From the character of these robberies and the manner in which they were conducted the police became convinced that they were the result of an organized campaign on the part of professional criminals.

Detective Sergt. Gregory was assigned to the work of breaking up this gang, and was told that he could have all the assistance he might need in the big task. It was a great job, the greatest he had ever undertaken. His first move was to get proof of the existence of such a gang. He went down to Whitechapel, and with the aid of a willing stool pigeon satisfied himself that there was such a thing as a criminal syndicate working along modern business lines. He learned that the ringleaders of this movement were in the habit of meeting at a certain house every night. These men were known as the Cabinet of Crime.

How could be get in at one of their sessions?

He decided that he would have to disguise himself, and he hit upon the character of an old cabman. He dressed the part to perfection. He secured a real old cab and a broken-down cab horse, and then attired himself with so great an attention to detail that he would not have been recognized by his nearest relative. He wore a long faded blue overcoat, a high silk hat that had seen better days, and carried a whip that was frayed and frazzled at the ends.

That night there was a new man on at the door of the den of thieves, and Gregory in the guise of the old cab driver got past him with an ease that astonished even himself. The man was just about to go out on an errand when the detective stepped up to him and said in a cockney accent:

"I say there, old chap, one of your people called for a cab, an' I'd like as 'ow you'd tell 'em I'm 'ere, and as 'ow I've got precious little time to spare."

The doortender gave the old man a foolish smile and told him to go in and find out for himself. He was such an innocent old duck and he looked so timid that no one seemed to pay any attention to him, but in the few minutes he was in the building he made a number of interesting discoveries. He recognized the principal members of the gang. The Cabinet of Crime had before them the London Blue Book, which gave the names and addresses of the nobility and the wealthy society people of the city, and they had copies of society journals and newspapers that told of the movements of influential persons who were sojourning out of town. The system was really wonderful.

Armed with all of this information Detective Sergeant Gregory was in a position to act and he acted promptly. The climax came when the gang prepared to rob the residence of a nobleman whose house was temporarily vacant. There were four of them engaged in this job and Gregory knew that they would take the swag back to the usual place of meeting. They permitted the thieves to rob the house and then they followed them to their own quarters. Gregory still used his disguise of the old cabman and managed to get into the house while they were engaged in dividing their loot. He had taken the trouble to plant a half dozen policemen around the house and at a given signal he popped in on the quartet.

"Hold up your hands, boys," he exclaimed, "it's useless to resist. The house is surrounded. We've got the goods on you and if you know what is good for you you'll come along quietly."

Some of them put up a fight on the way, but they were quickly overcome. That was the end of that particular combination of criminals.

The Menace of the Pocket Gun!

The United States had more than 10,000 slayings last year. The toll is on the increase.

A large percentage of these murders were unpremeditated and in nearly every case of this kind the instrument of death was a pocket pistol or revolver.

The slayers in these hot-blooded killings were men who at one time were without vice or crime knowledge.

They did not become criminals at one bound except in rare cases; but through a gradual process.

Would their thoughts have turned to use of a pistol in anger had they not been familiar with this type of weapon and its use and deadly effect?

The toy which forms the basis in childish play of many holdups and gun battles, when the modern youth meets upon the commons or streets after school, is the basis upon which rests the knowledge of deadly weapons.

Graduation to a full sized man-killing weapon is easy as soon as the boy begins to earn money of his own.

His training and subconscious thought has been in the use of the lethal weapon which fits so snugly against his hip.

Angered, in no state of mind to evaluate human life or the consequences of his act, he draws the pistol and fires.

Another murder is added to the ever-growing list. Another mother's son has ruined his life and made sad the declining years of his loved and loving parents.

Most of these crimes could be prevented by forethought in the early training of the child.

The Bible says, "Avoid even the appearance of evil."

HOOVER ACTS.

President Hoover is not only justified in consulting with Great Britain, France and Japan over the Manchurian crisis, but was duty-bound to do so under the terms of the four-power pact signed in Washington, December 13, 1921.

There may be a note of pathetic futility about reminding China and Russia that the Kellogg pact forbids the acts of war which are being reported, but the consultations between the four powers would have been imperatively called for irrespective of the pact. The signatories to the four-power treaty, after agreeing to respect each other's rights in the Pacific, agreed to the following provision:

> If the said rights are threatened by the aggressive action of any other power, the High Contracting Parties shall communicate with one another fully and frankly in order to arrive at an understanding as to the most efficient measures to be taken, jointly or separately, to meet the exigencies of the particular situation.

Nothing definite may result from the consultations initiated by President Hoover, for the nations may not agree upon the most efficient measures and the implied threat of military force to support this treaty provision will not be invoked lightly and perhaps could not be invoked with the consent of the powers concerned.

But the United States Government has at least not completely ignored obligations which result from the present crisis.

While the League of Nations has demonstrated its utter helplessness as a peace agency and has failed to even notice the war clouds despite the unmistakable obligations of the covenant, it has remained for the United States, not a member of the league, to make the first move in the interest of peace.

The four-power pact is based on self-interest of the four nations and not on any Utopian idea of world peace and it is suggestive of war, in case of necessity, which means that it is a misfit in connection with the Kellogg pact. But it is freely conceded that protection of selfish interests in the Pacific will be a far more potent influence for localizing the present Russo-Chinese clash than all the peace panaceas so far suggested.

Reports that Soviet Russia has actually begun war by invading Chinese territory with troops coincided yesterday with a statement from Moscow that Russia would not declare war because of the Kellogg pact. Naturally the Communist leaders will pounce upon America's suggestion that they live up to the pact because this presents an ideal opportunity for continuing their propaganda designed to persuade the Russian masses that China is the aggressor and that fighting in Chinese territory is, in some mysterious way, an act of aggression on the part of the Chinese.

Having steadfastly refused to recognize the Soviet government, the United States found it necessary to make its appeal to the Soviet authorities through the intercession of France.

In the announcement of this appeal to China and Russia, the State Department added that the controversy, judging from unofficial information, would lend itself to easy adjustment by processes of arbitration. It was suggested that the matters in dispute could be and should be amicably settled if the two nations would agree to talk things over.

China's chief complaint is directed against Soviet propaganda which she claims has sought to undermine her government and her institutions. America advises China to talk this over and settle it amicably, but it is noted here, with a suggestion of irony, that the refusal of the United States to recognize Russia has been all along based on the charge that Soviet propaganda has sought to undermine her government and her institutions. And America has again and again refused to discuss this matter in any form with Soviet Russia. It has been one of the matters which the United States Government has declared, in season and out of season, could not be discussed or amicably talked over.

Under the circumstances, the Soviet government may now believe that America is ready to about-face in her Russian policy and to apply to herself what she prescribes for China. If so, the Soviet officials may make added effort to bring the present Manchurian crisis to an early close. Meanwhile, attention is centered on the reports of border clashes and hope persists that some miracle may yet avert the spread of war.

CASE OF THE LOBBY.

The attack against lobbies made by former President Coolidge in the American Magazine may have far-reaching effect. During the last session the Senate passed a bill designed to regulate lobbying by compelling all lobbyists to register and to file sworn statements as to the source and amounts of their financial support and calling for periodical reports under oath as to their activities for and against legislation. The bill died in the House, but certain senators are known to be concerned with the extent of lobbying, and at least one, Mr. Caraway, plans to introduce legislation at an early date calling for a general investigation of lobbying. The Coolidge attack, therefore, comes at an appropriate time. Unquestionably, it will be utilized by Mr. Caraway and others.

The former President contends that lobbyists, or "organized minorities," as they are now known, have not only increased the cost of legislation tremendously, but if they were not checked by the presidential veto and the House rules they would double the cost of government in two years. He believes that it is the organized minorities that have given Congress the reputation for being a sore trial to Presidents and a recalcitrant, inefficient body. "It is because in its hours of timidity," says Mr. Coolidge, "the Congress becomes subservient to the importunities of organized minorities that the President comes more and more to stand as the champion of the rights of the whole country."

It is not easy to take issue with Mr. Coolidge. Undoubtedly a good part of the fault he finds with the lobby is based in fact. But there is another side to the question and it has been ably expressed by Dr. Edward B. Logan, assistant professor of political science, of the University of Pennsylvania, in a supplement entitled "Lobbying," published with the annals of the American Academy of Political and Social Science. Dr. Logan says:

> Individuals no longer can safely feel that their representation has been acquired when they have helped to elect legislators. They must now direct their representatives, not individually, but through organization. It has been contended that the individual must now find his place in one of the lobbying organizations if he is to have effective representation, and there is much truth in this assertion.

Dr. Logan finds much to criticize in the lobby, but he also finds much to praise. The lobby, he says, has come to serve legislators and administrators in an advisory capacity, affording expert information that otherwise might have been lacking. Furthermore, it translates complex governmental problems into simple language so that the people may understand them and arrive at well-informed decisions. This is essential, he says, if representative government is to function properly.

There are, of course, two general types of lobby. One seeks to bring the membership of an organization into closer contact with legislative matters in which it is directly concerned. Against this type of lobby, provided it works in the open and does not pose for what it is not, little criticism can be raised. The other type, however, works always under cover and seeks to attain a selfish end by devious devices. This type of lobby can not be defended and should be destroyed. Whether or not it is possible to destroy the bad lobby without harassing the good, however, is another matter. It is a question for Congress to consider carefully. There is no need for great haste. So numerous have lobbies become that, generally speaking, for every pro-lobby there is an anti, and, in the final analysis, the effect of one about counterbalances the effect of the other.

THE END OF FARM RELIEF.

The agricultural situation is gradually improving and the average American farmer is in a much better position than he was a few years ago. The annual survey of the Bureau of Agricultural Economics shows that farm returns in 1928 were the best for any year since the postwar agricultural depression. Reports from owner-operated farms all over the country indicate an average net return of $1,334 in 1928, compared with $1,290 in 1927, and with $917 in 1922.

This improvement has been coincidental with a rapid growth in cooperative marketing. Chairman Legge of the Federal Farm Board estimates that 2,000,000 of the country's 6,500,000 farmers are members of some accredited cooperative. The growing consciousness that agricultural prosperity must come through unified action indicates that the depression might have been lifted over a long period without the aid of the Government. If the Farm Board functions as was intended it will hasten the movement toward recovery without materially changing the ultimate machinery through which the farmer will produce and dispose of his commodities.

The country has been so much concerned with the form which agricultural relief should take that few have given a thought as to where Government aid will end. Is the Farm Board to be considered a permanent agency which will continue to direct the policies of agriculture after the emergency has passed? The American people do not welcome Government interference with private enterprise except in cases of emergency. It is therefore encouraging to find the board at the outset laying the foundation for its own withdrawal from the field.

Chairman Legge has announced that the board will take no cognizance of individual farmers. They can approach the board for aid only through their organizations. This is virtually a command for modernization of agriculture. The success of the Government's plan depends upon the success of the board in bringing the economic structure of agriculture up to date. When that is done there should be no further need of the Federal Farm Board. It should be possible for the industry to manage its own affairs just as every other American industry does, with the help, of course, of the Department of Agriculture.

No one can foresee the outcome of the program that is being launched by the new board. It is inconceivable that the problem can be worked out satisfactorily in a short time. Even the most optimistic regard the farm relief plan an experiment. Nevertheless it is well to lay the foundation of the experiment in such a way that the Government will not be drawn farther and farther into the field of private enterprise. By making organization of farm groups its first objective the board is paving the way for the farmers themselves to take over the leadership which is now assumed by the Government.

Running 60 miles an hour, an automobile with a 73-year-old driver, who was helpless through fright, plunged from a 30-foot cliff near Sandusky into Lake Erie. The occupant got a good idea of how it feels to participate with the younger generation in any of its activities.

TIDES OF COLOR

(From the Boston Transcript.)

Why are flowers of different colors? Because each flower contains a pigment which is either dissolved in the cellsap or held in the chromoplastids. The blue, purple and violet, says Dr. Frank Vizetelly, are the result of various chemically related substances in solution commonly called anthocyanin; the orange, the red and yellow are due to carrotin or some of its derivatives. Other groups of pigments may be found in some flowers.

Although the colors of flowers are very numerous and of many hues and shades, yet it is possible to segregate them into two groups, the blue and the yellow, and that with each of these one may find red and white.

In an average collection of 1,000 plants, 284 were found to have white flowers, 226 yellow, 220 red, 141 blue, 73 violet, 36 green, 12 orange, 4 brown and 2 black. Of these, the white-flowered plants emitted the most fragrant perfume, and it was noted that the perfume of the red flower was more pleasing than that of the yellow.

The coloring of flowers has been found to be intimately connected with the alternations of the seasons. In some parts of the world certain outdoor plants show an increase in blossom from December to July. The white flowers exceed in number all the rest during the entire period of the year when plants are in blossom. Following the white come the yellow, then the orange, the blue, the violet, the green, and, lastly, the indigo, which are the most uncommon.

The flowering of plants is closely connected with the mean temperature, but occasionally anomalies are produced which change of temperature can not explain. It is somewhat striking that there is a rapid decrease in the number of flowering plants from the end of July to that of August.

In the month of January, when all the flowers are white, to the vernal equinox, the number of white flowers rapidly decreases. After that time the number increases till the middle of May, and then noticeably decreases until the frosts arrest all vegetation. Setting aside the small number of yellow flowers that appear in February and March, the proportion of flowers of that color increases from the beginning of April until the end of June. It remains stationary until the middle of August, after which time it increases again until the frosts come.

The proportional number of red flowers gradually diminishes from February to the end of April, then proceeds on an ascending scale until the end of August, after which it decreases until October. From then on it rises until November is reached, when most of the cultivated flowers are red.

Green or greenish flowers diminish from March until the end of May, and after this the proportion is about uniformly maintained until winter sets in. Blue flowers increase in number to the middle of April, but decrease with the summer solstice, then rise again to the number attained in April, only to decrease rapidly and cease totally on the appearance of Jack Frost.

The other colors have not been found to be regular enough to allow of the citing of a rule for them. It is curious to note, however, that each color rises twice and decreases twice. Whenever the white flowers increase, the yellow decrease, and vice versa. The red and the green always correspond, as do the blue and the violet flowers. These remarks apply to species rather than to individuals.

The number of plants that open their corolla during the night is very small compared with those that blossom during the day and is only about 12 per cent.

Has it ever occurred to you that it may be advantageous to arrange the flowers in your garden systematically? The subject of such an arrangement has already received the attention of scientists who recommend that blue flowers be placed next to orange; that violet should be arranged next to yellow, and that red and pink flowers are always seen to best advantage when surrounded by verdure or by white flowers. White plants may be displayed to advantage among groups of blue and orange or violet and yellow flowers.

But after all, nothing is more beautiful than the old-fashioned country garden in which flowers grow in a riot of color that gladdens the heart and awakens within us paens of praise to the glory of our Maker.

There are some flowers that change colors during the day; such, for instance, as the common pink phlox, which, in the morning, is light blue but turns to pink as the day advances. Probably the most extraordinary of these plants is the Hibiscus variabilis, which is white in the morning, pink at noon, and bright red at sunset. Sometimes the colors are modified by the soil, and varieties of the same flower have produced diversity of color when the soil in which they have been cultivated has been changed.

Louisville Courier-Journal: The proposed new tariff bill provides a reduction in the duty on carillons from 40 per cent to 20 per cent. Now everybody can buy a set of chimes cheaper to swell the chorus.

Happy Mr. Dawes.

New York Herald Tribune: Wherever he is Mr. Dawes seems to get a whole lot of fun out of life. At the moment he is Ambassador to the Court of St. James. Apparently he is having a first-rate time in his official position. In any case, newspaper readers on both sides of the Atlantic continue to be greatly interested, and not infrequently they are pleased as well as amused.

The ambassador's underslung pipe, his contempt for silk breeches, his ban on liquor at the legation have served as topics for many arresting dispatches. Much has been written on the question of the limitation of naval armaments, but we doubt whether the general public has followed the negotiations between Premier MacDonald and the ambassador with the attention it has given to these other items of a more intimate character. If a bit of humor, a dash of fun, make life more interesting, perhaps the same ingredients will help to solve some of the complicated problems of international relations.

Another Letter From a Bald-Headed Dad to a Flapper Daughter.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

MY dear Louise:

Some months ago a young lady who taught school here in town expressed a willingness to return next year and was reelected.

That was a contract, and, while a contract is a "confession of mutual distrust," it does away with uncertainty and enables people to plan for the future and avoid confusion.

This young lady felt free of obligation, however, and when another school offered her more pleasant work she exercised the immemorial prerogative of her sex and changed her mind.

The school board was willing to let her go, but one of its members commented privately: "Just like a woman. A contract doesn't mean anything to them."

As a matter of fact, the young lady changed her mind a second time when somebody told her it wouldn't be fair to break her word, but her ability to change her mind in the first place without hurt to her conscience was so characteristic of your sex that you must be warned against a similar indifference to masculine standards of honor.

You can't break your word without paying for it.

Take the case of that little red-headed girl you liked so well last year. When a young man from another town asked her for a date after meeting her at a party she gave it to him without hesitation—not because she was interested in him or had reason to believe that two hours of his conversation would be enjoyable, but solely because she felt flattered. Capivating a stranger always tickles your vanity more than winning the approval of some ordinary person you have known for years.

The girl didn't go through with it, however. She heard something about the boy that displeased her and broke the date.

Perhaps she chose the less of two evils. Her mistake was in making the date without knowing what she was doing. But having pledged her word there was no way to break it without dishonor.

Girls do that kind of thing. They know they won't be denounced or openly scorned as men are when they break their word to one another, and because no punishment is threatened they think dishonor doesn't harm them.

But it does. Men keep their word better than women do because their sex has had more experience of contracts and they have learned that dishonor is expensive.

The girl who breaks her word may think there is no penalty, but there is. Dishonor in small matters makes character. And the habit of doing small evils for which there is no apparent punishment leads inevitably to a willingness to do greater ones if there is reasonable hope of avoiding punishment.

Honor for its own sake is your only assurance of safety. Those who are decent only to avoid a penalty will be indecent when they feel sure they can get away with it.

Give your word reluctantly, but when you have given it remember that your honor is pledged.

If you would interest square men you must be as square as they are.

DAD.

WHAT? NO SILK PARACHUTES!

"Washington—The United States Bureau of Standards has developed a cotton parachute, which it has found to be a reliable substitute for silk, it was announced today."—News item.

Extreme indignation was voiced by women fliers when shown the above dispatch today. A protest to Washington is expected. No woman can be expected to hop out of a plane in a cotton parachute when she knows there are silk ones on the market.

* * * *

The next thing you know the Government will be urging that airplane bodies be made of wicker, that wings be manufactured from compressed calico and that propellers be made out of discarded gingham aprons.

* * * *

"I would like to see them hand me a cotton parachute," said Ima Dodo today. "I would hand it right back to them and demand decent material. Does the Government think a real lady would want to be seen falling out of a plane in a parachute of cheap material like cotton?

* * * *

"Silk parachutes have been used for years, and so far as I have heard there have been no complaints. There is something comforting about coming down in a silk parachute. It gives a girl a feeling of refinement and class.

* * * *

"But you can trust Uncle Sam to go meddling with matters. Just when all the girls have become used to jumping out of fuselages in silk 'chutes, he goes to work and substitutes cotton!

* * * *

"Can you imagine a government being so cheap? When anybody, man or woman, steps out of a plane in the air it may be his or her last trip and you wouldn't think the country would begrudge 'em a high-class parachute.

* * * *

"It is up to the women fliers of America to rise in arms and notify Uncle Sam that they will do no cotton-parachute jumping for anybody. If real silk is too expensive we girls might compromise on celenese or rayon, but we will hop out of our airplanes without any parachutes whatsoever before we will consent to come down in five and ten cent store ones."

* * * *

The young woman was all worked up over the matter.

"You can land as safely in a cotton parachute as in a silk one," she was reminded.

"I know it," she snapped, "but it looks like hell!"

LETTERS TO THE EDITORS.

Writer Calls Demand for Wickersham's Dismissal Narrow Partisanship; Says it Exposes Intent of Drys.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The statement of Senator Caraway that the usefulness of the National Crime Commission will be destroyed if Chairman Wickersham remains at its head is really too narrowly partisan to be commented upon. But permit me to point out that the demands from extreme drys that Mr. Wickersham be removed only serve to put them in their true light before the public. They are for continuance of prohibition in its present form in spite of its weaknesses, its atrocities and everything else. Any sensible suggestion would meet with the same criticism from them.

It is evident that Senator Caraway and others who were upset over the letter of Chairman Wickersham do not want the facts on prohibition. The commission was appointed by President Hoover to make a thorough investigation of the entire crime situation. It was announced that the commission would make public its opinions and findings as it proceeded. But as soon as the chairman makes an independent suggestion on the question of prohibition, his removal is demanded.

Mr. Wickersham's letter does not pretend to be the solution of prohibition evils resulting from the commission's study. The investigation has just begun. The letter appears to be a suggestion growing out of a general view of the whole situation. It is an independent thought on the subject—just what President Hoover and all others interested in a sensible solution have been asking for. The fact that such a statement should bring a demand for the chairman's resignation reveals that the radical drys expected the Hoover commission to be merely another "yes" body which would close its eyes to the whole prohibition muddle and call for more money for enforcement. CURTIS ROBERTSON.

The Stereoscopic Film Threatens the Stage, but Should It Be Considered Anything but a Blessing?

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The new stereoscopic motion picture has been successfully demonstrated and it is announced that the task of equipping the theaters of the country for its exhibition will be got under way forthwith. On a screen 40 feet wide and 20 feet high, as compared with the ordinary screen of approximately 17 by 13 feet, the new projector throws an image in three dimensions, centering interest on the main action and permitting the subsidiary action to proceed uninterruptedly in the background. The public will await these new, lifelike films with the greatest interest, and it goes without saying that the theatrical world will keep close tab on their development.

Already the movies have fought a winning battle with the legitimate theater and if the new process makes possible the projection of a more lifelike film it may be that the knell of the drama will have been sounded. Why, indeed, should the public patronize the legitimate theater, at greater cost, if equally satisfactory entertainment is to be found in the movie houses? Why, for that matter, should producers continue to work on legitimate productions when they can make lifelike movies, perhaps at greater expense, which can be exhibited to millions instead of to mere thousands?

And why, if the new movies are so lifelike, should it be considered a pity that the legitimate drama will have been destroyed? It is quite in line with modern development that the drama should be mechanized and if the new movies are as satisfactory as is claimed nothing will be lost in the destruction of the old-fashioned stage. To the contrary, satisfactory and artistic entertainment will be made available to millions who, until now, have been starved of this necessity.

New York and Chicago Race in Construction of Skyscrapers—Washington Maintains a Good Sense Policy.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I see from press reports that the contest between Chicago and New York to become the greatest city of skyscrapers is being renewed with increased vigor. New York has long boasted of its canyon streets and its tallest building in the world. The Chrysler Building and the Bank of Manhattan will outstrip the Woolworth Tower in height, but Chicago is planning to outdo all three with its new Crane Tower, which will rise 1,022 feet from the ground. This will be more than 200 feet higher than the Woolworth Tower.

So anxious is Chicago, the originator of the modern skyscraper, to take first honors (if there is any honor involved) that the city council has amended its ordinance on skyscrapers. Hereafter buildings may be constructed to a height of 440 feet without setbacks and towers may be built as high as engineering genius permits. Chicago now has 65 buildings of more than twenty stories, compared with 188 buildings of this class in New York. It appears that the Midwestern metropolis is deliberately trying to stimulate construction of more and higher skyscrapers.

The skyscraper race is not confined to New York and Chicago. Other cities, such as Detroit and Cleveland, are participating, and certainly only the danger of earthquakes keeps Los Angeles out of the competition. In the midst of such folly, Washington is to be congratulated for its common-sense policy of keeping buildings down to a reasonable limit. Let the Nation's Capital specialize in architectural beauty rather than hugeness.

Ramsay MacDonald Visit, MacMurray's Stay in China of Interest.

By JEAN ELIOT.

"ALL I know is what I see in the papers," as Will Rogers remarks. Nothing much of interest is happening here just now, but men and women in whom "all Washington" is interested are bobbing up in headlines all over the world.

The Prince of Wales—in London—drinks a glass of beer to the health of the British workmen, who have just completed the new building of the London School of Hygiene and Tropical Medicine Mussolini—in Rome—pats U. S. Ambassador Henry P. Fletcher on the back, figuratively if not literally, and sends him home to retirement—at his own request—from the diplomatic corps.

Mr. John Van A. MacMurray, U. S. Minister to China, who had been granted leave of absence to come home, may be requested by the Secretary of State to remain at his post if the Chino-Russian embroglio takes a more serious turn. Mrs. Coolidge, wife of the former President, accepts an invitation to christen the cruiser, Northampton, to be launched at Quincy, Mass., on September 7.

Mr. Ramsay MacDonald, Prime Minister of Great Britain, decides to put off his proposed visit to Washington possibly until next year. Mr. Charles Gates Dawes, U. S. Ambassador to Great Britain, becomes so enamored of ancient and historic London that he decides to stay in town all summer, pottering about in museums and art galleries and reading history in the very stones of London. Moreover, Gen. Dawes has made the damaging admission that his golf handicap is 35.

This frank avowal, from all accounts, came after he had given a brilliant exhibition of skillful avoidance of questions on naval yardsticks, vintners' loving cups and other dynamite-laden subjects at the recent Foreign Press Associations' luncheon in London. It appears that Ambassador Dawes has already found time to spend a good many hours in the British Museum, and has developed a special enthusiasm for Sumerian relics and the fruit of other excavations in the Near East.

Those who discourse learnedly by cable on the reasons for the postponement of Prime Minister MacDonald's trip state that, although both the premier and President Hoover wish to come together for discussion, they feel that the time is not yet ripe. The wiseacres further suggest that if such a historic voyage were put off until after sucess had crowned conversations on the subject of arms limitation, the visit might be made the spectacular occasion for signing the naval agreement.

Mr. MacMurray—to leap back half across the world to Peking, in the manner of headlines—has not had leave for three years. He and Mrs. MacMurray have been packed up for weeks, waiting to get off, their furniture crated and ready for shipment home. Which suggests that, once they come away from Peking, they will not go back. Mr. MacMurray is a Washingtonian, a son of the late Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Junius MacMurray.

Another young man with Washington connections, who is in the thick of the excitement in the Russo-Chinese disagreement is Lieut. Thomas Dresser White, U. S. A., who has been attached to the U. S. legation in Peking as assistant military attache and special language officer. He has recently been sent to Harbin, which is in the very center of the excitement, and should be useful, as he speaks both Russian and Chinese. Mrs. White, who was Miss Rebecca Lipscomb, came home when her husband was ordered to Harbin and has been staying with her mother, Mrs. Blaine Lipscomb, at Wardman Park Hotel. At the moment, however, she is visiting on the Eastern Shore of Maryland. When Mrs. White starts back to China in a few weeks, Mrs. Lipscomb will accompany her and will spend the next year in Peking.

Vice President Leaves On Trip to Rhode Island.

The Vice President, Mr. Charles Curtis, left yesterday to visit his son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Webster Knight 2d, at their summer home at Riverpoint, R. I., not far from Providence.

Mrs. Edward Everett Gann, sister of Vice President Curtis, will leave Washington at the end of next week to visit her niece, Mrs. Charles P. George, at Sisasconset, Mass., and will later be the guest of Mrs. Knight at Riverpoint. Mrs. Gann will be joined later by Mr. Gann and they will pass the month of September at their home in Topeka, Kans.

The Minister of Panama and Senora de Alfaro and their family will start next week for Maine. The minister will return to Washington early in August and on August 6 will go to Charlottesville for some of the sessions of the Institute of Public Affairs of the University of Virginia. Senora de Alfaro will tour for a while in the White Mountains, afterward returning to the coast of Maine.

The Minister of Roumania, Mr. George Cretziano, is the guest for whom Mrs. John Dana will entertain at dinner tonight. Accompanied by Mlle. Jeanne Cretziano, he will sail on July 26 for Europe and will go to his new post in Warsaw.

Senor Don Ernesto Argueta, newly appointed Minister of Honduras, will arrive in New York Monday from Honduras and will be accompanied by Senora de Argueta and their small child. With them will be Senora de Perdoma, wife of Dr. Charles A. Perdoma, secretary of legation and at present charge d'affaires.

Senor Argueta will remain in New York a few days and will come to Washington on July 25.

Senor Don Luis Bogran, the former Minister of Honduras, left Washington last February and is now in his own country. After his departure Senor Professor Carlos Izaguirre was temporarily charge d'affaires and was succeeded the end of May by Dr. Perdoma.

The Assistant Secretary of State, Mr. William R. Castle, jr., is passing the week-end with Mrs. Castle at Hot Springs, Va., and will return to Washington Monday.

Capt. Allen Buchanan, who has come to Washington from the Pacific Coast to serve as naval aid to President Hoover, and Mrs. Buchanan have taken an apartment at 2400 Sixteenth street.

Mrs. James Carroll Frazer has taken an apartment at 2101 Connecticut avenue and will remain in town for some time to supervise the moving of her possessions from her house at 1611 Twenty-first street. The house was recently purchased by Col. Robert M. Thompson.

Dr. William Gerry Morgan has returned to the city from a visit to Portland, Oreg., where he attended the annual meeting of the American Medical Association and was elected its president. Later he visited his son-in-law and daughter, Lieut. and Mrs. Charles Wellborn, in Seattle. En route home he was the guest in Chicago of Dr. Frank Smithies.

Former Spanish Envoy Departs After Visit.

Senor Don Juan Riano, some time Ambassador of Spain to the United States, left Washington yesterday after a few days visit with Mr. Harry Wardman. On Thursday evening they were both guests at a dinner given by Representative and Mrs. Fred Britten at the Plage Deauville. Mme. Samy Pasha, wife of the Minister of Egypt, was also in the company.

Mr. and Mrs. William McClellan Ritter, who have been at White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., have gone to New York to make a brief visit before returning to Washington.

Mrs. Adolphus Andrews is spending the summer at Westport, N. Y. Capt. Andrews is aboard the Texas.

The Surgeon General of the Public Health Service and Mrs. Hugh S. Cumming returned yesterday from a trip West. Dr. Cumming attended the meeting of the American Medical Association in Portland, Oreg. On their way home they stopped in Sheridan, Wyo., to visit their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Manville Kendrick.

The Director of the Mint and Mrs. Robert J. Grant have had with them at the Wardman Park Hotel their daughter, Mrs. Frederick Dunham, who will go today to New York, where she will join Mr. Dunham.

The Financial Counselor of the Roumanian Legation and Mme. Boncesco will leave early in August to visit friends at Big Moose in the Adirondacks.

Miss Laura Louise Barkley, daughter of Senator and Mrs. Alben Barkley, is spending three months traveling in Europe. Mrs. Barkley is passing the summer at their home in Kentucky.

Mr. and Mrs. John W. Davis, of New York, sailed yesterday for Southampton on the S. S. Olympic and will spend the rest of the summer abroad.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Brice have taken a cottage at Newport for the rest of the summer.

Hoover Party Off for Camp On Rapidan

Hospitality Enjoyed By Large Group; May Stay Till Monday.

The President and Mrs. Hoover who will spend the week-end at their camp on the Rapidan, have with them the largest group which has yet shared the hospitality of this mountain retreat. The Secretary of State and Mrs. Henry L. Stimson are among their guests, and others in the company are the Undersecretary of State, Mr. Cotton; Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Rickard, of New York; Miss Ethel Rickard and Mr. and Mrs. Huntley Spaulding, of Rochester, who had been staying at the White House; Mr. Herbert Hoover, jr., Mr. Alan Hoover, Mr. Lawrence Richey, Secretary to the President, and Commander Joel T. Boone, White House physician.

Secretary Stimson had originally intended going to New York to stay over Sunday with Mrs. Stimson, but their plans were changed when the pleasant invitation came to be members of the President and Mrs. Hoover's camping party. The group left the White House yesterday afternoon by motor, and propose to return to Washington Sunday night or Monday morning.

Representative Christopher D. Sullivan, of 1192 Park avenue, New York, announces the engagement of his daughter, Miss Isabel Florence Sullivan, to Mr. F. Howard Barrett, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard B. Barrett, of New York. Miss Sullivan is a graduate of the Dominican Academy and for some time past has been traveling abroad. Mr. Barrett, an alumnus of Fordham University class of 1919, is connected with the Guaranty Trust Co. in Paris. The wedding will take place in New York some time in the autumn.

Mrs. George C. Thorpe will leave town this evening for Newport, R. I., and will be at the Muenchener-King for the remainder of July and August. Miss Betty Thorpe, who has been visiting in Newport for the last fortnight, will join her mother.

Miss Mignon Sherley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Swager Sherley, sailed yesterday from New York on the S. S. Caronia for France to attend school for a year. Miss Sherley and two other students from Washington, Miss Ann Justin Davis and Miss Margaret Rupli, are members of a group of 65 undergraduates and graduates of high scholastic standing from different colleges throughout the country who will take a course of foreign study arranged by the University of Delaware. They will study at Nancy from July 31 to mid-September and then will go to Sorbonne for the school term of September to June.

Miss Sherley and the other two members from Washington will spend next summer touring on the continent, returning home in September.

Mrs. William Marston Seabury and Miss Ethelreda Seabury, who have been visiting Mrs. Seabury's son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Savage Crocker 3d, at Budapest, will start with them tomorrow by motor for Stockholm. Mr. Crocker, who has been first secretary of the U. S. Legation in Budapest, has been transferred to the Swedish post. Mrs. Crocker, who was Miss Lispenard Seabury, made her debut in Washington several years ago under the guidance of her aunt, Mrs. Austin Kautz.

Pinchot Party Lands Sea Bat Off Galapogos

Former Governor With His Party Makes Long Romantic Cruise.

Mr. Gifford Pinchot, former Governor of Pennsylvania, and Mrs. Pinchot, who have been vagabonding around the Galapagos Islands on the schooner Mary Pinchot, have put in at Balboa, in the Canal Zone, for necessary repairs—personal probably, as well as nautical—and will at once ship to the United States the scientific specimens the expedition has collected.

The party, which includes a group of scientists and Mr. and Mrs. Pinchot's young son, Gifford Pinchot, jr., is still in the early stages of a 15,000-mile cruise which is to take them to the glamorous regions of the South Sea Islands. Not only will this enchanting realm be explored, but there will be a further study of deep sea flora and fauna, and the collection of scientific specimens, which is now assuming important proportions, will be greatly augmented.

The expedition has already been successful in capturing a huge sea bat of the genus Manta, one of the treasures for which it was in search, and has gathered in several of the giant Galapagos tortoises, two of which will be shipped to the National Museum. The sea bat will also go to the museum for definite classification.

The Pinchots had planned to stay but a week at the Galapagos Islands, but found them so fascinating that they cruised about for a solid month and will return again before continuing to the Marquesas, Pitcairn and other islands. They are due to set sail again tomorrow. Mrs. Pinchot is the only woman in the party.

Mrs. Frederic R. Harris, wife of Rear Admiral Harris, U. S. N., and her daughter, Florence, have arrived at Lido, Venice, for the season and are at the

Dr. Wilfley said that Christian Endeavor is living up to its aims today as it never has before. Announcement was made at the meeting that the world Christian Endeavor convention will be held next year in Berlin, Germany.

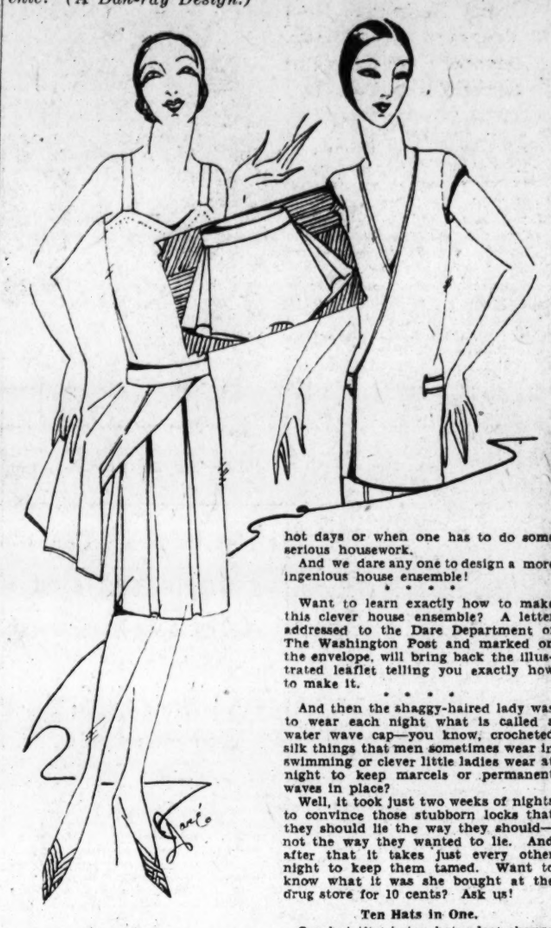
Jane Interprets the Mode

Our idea of the last word in house dress completeness and chic! (A Dah-ray Design.)



THERE you have it! At last, at last, the perfect house dress that is positively and absolutely chic, that you need not have the slightest compunctions about having hubby or the kiddies see you in, and that will yet permit you to do your work with the utmost ease and freedom.

It is illustrated for you today, and if you think it doesn't represent yards and yards of material and hours and hours of pins, you have other thinks coming! For we not only had to design it but had to make several before finding out its little trickinesses.

* * * *

Result—an achievement! There are four pieces—and one wears two, three or four of them at a time as one wishes. First there is the box pleated skirt on a chemise top. Then there is a double-fronted blouse—who cares if the clean front is worn over the other when one gets a little mussed or soiled? Next, a detachable apron so contrived that when worn it looks exactly like a part of the skirt, but can be taken off when necessary. And last, detachable culottes—oh really—which can be worn sh-sh-sh, with just the blouse for very hot days or when one has to do some serious housework.

And we dare any one to design a more ingenious house ensemble!

* * * *

Want to learn exactly how to make this clever house ensemble? A letter addressed to the Dare Department of The Washington Post and marked on the envelope, will bring back the illustrated leaflet telling you exactly how to make it.

* * * *

And then the shaggy-haired lady was to wear each night what is called a water wave cap—you know, crocheted silk things that men sometimes wear in swimming or clever little ladies wear at night to keep marcels or permanent waves in place?

Well, it took just two weeks of nights to convince those stubborn locks that they should lie the way they should—not the way they wanted to lie. And after that it takes just every other night to keep them tamed. Want to know what it was she bought at the drug store for 10 cents? Ask us!

Ten Hats in One.

One hat that is ten hats—last chance to send your stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare Department of The Washington Post for the illustrated leaflet which tells you how to make it.

At the present moment, speaking laceishly, Alencon and Malines points are chiefly in favor and are used in preference to all other genres. They do so give dresses a feminine touch and a prettiness which goes very well with summer models!

What We Can Do With Paint.

We just had a perfect orgy of redecorating our goofy-nice studio—and it was so much fun that we would like to tell you exactly how we did it. Write and ask us—only address the letter to "Dare—Personal." Enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope for our reply. We tell you how to enamel, how to refinish wood, lacquer, polychrome and all the other tricky little things that are so simple to do when you know how.

Tomorrow you should make it a point to read the weekly Dare fashion letter in The Sunday Post. It is always interesting.

Au Revoir!

Concert Bill Over WRC On Request

Classical Numbers Asked Held to Show Turning From Jazz by Public. Lopez Orchestra Will Be WMAL Feature.

The cool spell improved atmospheric conditions last night but there was a noticeable lack of signal strength.

An all-request program will be broadcast in the weekly symphony concert of the General Electric Hour over WRC at 8 o'clock. The symphony orchestra, under direction of Nathaniel Shilkret, will be assisted by Erva Giles, soprano; Lucius Metz, tenor; and Leon Salathiel, barytone.

The numbers chosen by the radio audience show a pronounced increase in the popularity of great music and a falling off in the number of requests for jazz. Tschaikowsky heads the list with two compositions, his famous sixth symphony, the "Pathetique," and the "Nutcracker Suite." Other selections are "Minute Waltz," Chopin; "Tambourin Chinois," Kreisler; "Scherzo in E minor," Mendelssohn; "Voce de Primavera," Strauss, Erva Giles; "Skyward," Shilkret; "Slavonic Dance in E minor," Dvorak; "Souvenir," Drdla, Lucius Metz; "Hungarian Rhapsody No. 6," Liszt; "The Lost Chord," Sullivan; "Soirees de Vienne," Schubert, and excerpts from "The Fortune Teller," Herbert.

The Lucky Strike Dance Orchestra will be broadcast at 9 o'clock, followed by the El Tango Romantico period. Rudy Valle and his orchestra will be broadcast for a half-hour, followed by the Hotel Bossert Orchestra.

The Citizens Military Training Camp will be the subject of a short talk by William Tyler Page, clerk of the House of Representatives, from the studios of WRC at 6:15 o'clock. The Saturday evening Bible talk will be presented by Homer J. Councilor, president of the Organized Bible Class Association, at 6:31 o'clock, followed by a fifteen-minute discussion of world business by Dr. Julius Klein, Assistant Secretary of Commerce.

The Goldman Band concert will be sent to listeners over WJZ from the campus of New York University from 8:45 to 9:30 o'clock. From Sousa's "Stars and Stripes Forever," the big brass ensemble passes to a brillian review of classic overtures, suites and operatic excerpts, for which Cora Frye, soprano soloist, supplies a vocal interlude.

A love song by Monro, a characteristic melancholy by Tschaikowsky and two other classical songs will be sung by William Ryder, barytone, during a brief intermission in the concert.

From picturesque Belle Isle, an island park lying between Detroit and Ontario, the Detroit Symphony Orchestra will broadcast one of its series of summer concerts to listeners of WJR, Detroit, and WBAL, Baltimore, at 8 o'clock. Victor Kolar, who has directed the annual municipal concerts in the open air shell at Bell Isle for five years, will conduct. He was born in Prague, Bohemia, and was an associate of Victor Herbert in Pittsburgh and Walter Damrosch in New York City before going to Detroit.

Dance orchestras will occupy the last hour and a half which WMAL will be on the air this evening, with Vicent Lopez scheduled for 9:30 o'clock.

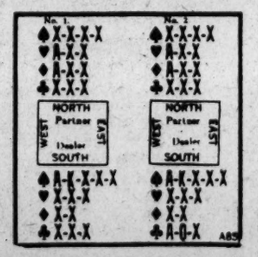
A burglar's convention is the feature that the Nit Wit Hour has chosen to broadcast at 8 o'clock. Novelty instruments of every kind will make up the program that Joe Green and his marimba orchestra will present during the Temple Hour at 8:30 o'clock.

Jeanette Leipziger, the 13-year-old pianist who was introduced to the radio audience by WOL several weeks ago, will be heard at 6:45 o'clock this afternoon in a short recital.

The Walter Holt guitar, mandolin and banjo group again will be heard at 6:12 o'clock in a short program, with Amos 'n' Andy on at 7:11 o'clock. The Silver String Revelers will be heard at 8 o'clock.

WORK'S BRIDGE

MANY contend that a player should jump his partner's suit-bid from one to two when the jumper holds normal support in the suit originally bid plus two side Aces. Let us look at two cases in which the proper original bid is one Spade, and in which the partner holds two Aces and better than normal Spade support.



Using the system I advocate, the dealer's hand in No. 1 would be the very weakest with which a suit-bid should be made; and the dealer's hand in No. 2 would be the strongest with which a suit-bid of only one should be made. Under that same system, partner would count his four Spades as having a value of 2 points, and each of his Aces as 5; giving his hand a count of 12 for jumping purposes; and I do not think an original bid of one, made at a love score, should be jumped with less than 13. Let us see how this rule would work in the present instance.

In No. 1 the combined hands played with Spades the trump would lose one Spade or no Spades (the loss of two Spades is possible but the 4-0 adverse division will occur in less than 10 per cent of all the hands that are dealt, so it is too improbable to consider as a menace), two Hearts, one Diamond and three Clubs; i. e., they would lose either six or seven tricks, depending upon whether the adverse Spades were divided 2-2 or 3-1. Consequently they might make a contract of one or they might go down one (remote possibility of two), contract—clearly a case in which a jump would prove to be too ambitious—but the argument for the jump would be that dealer, instead of bidding with a minimum, might have had a much stronger hand.

No. 2 illustrates this. The dealer has all that could be expected from a one-bidder, yet the combined hands with Spades the trump would lose two Hearts, one Diamond, one or two Clubs, and one Spade (remote possibility of two) or no Spades, depending upon the adverse distribution. At best they must lose four tricks, with a bad break they will lose at least six. If North should jump, South in No. 2 would re-jump; consequently North's jump will not make a game and may prove disastrous.

What Today Means to You

By MARY BLAKE.

JULY 20.

"CANCER."

IF July 20 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 11 a. m. to 12 noon, from 5 p. m. to 6 p. m., and from 9 p. m. to 10:30 p. m.; the danger periods are from 10 a. m. to 11 a. m., and from 3 p. m. to 4:30 p. m.

Planetary aspects of this date indicate travel and change. The younger members of the community will be more subject to these influences than the older ones. In the evening conditions will be quiescent, and will prove to be auspicious for social diversions.

A child born July 20 will develop a strong personality, capable of either good or evil. Much of its mature life will depend upon its early surroundings, as during the transition period from adolescence to adulthood it will be very amenable to environment and atmosphere.

You are rather inclined to be one of life's onlookers. You hesitate to dip into the thick of things and do not taste your share of the good things. Your fear of not being able to accomplish what is before you is often the only thing in your way. You are too willing to step aside and let others take your rightful place. You are too complacently walked over. Self-analysis will reveal to you the folly of one of your ability taking a back seat.

It is not lack of energy, the lack of talents or the lack of opportunities that is at the bottom of your failures; it is your lack of faith and self-confidence. You have perseverance, but it is not backed by decision. You must put more heart and soul into your punch! You never knowingly fail doing your duty toward others, but you criminally fail in doing your duty toward yourself.

You are not imaginative, but are keenly observant and an able executant. You are a painstaking, conscientious worker, and you have a flare for details. There is no reason why you can not capitalize these traits. The depth and charm of your personality is only revealed to those who have successfully pierced your armor of reticence and shyness. You are affectionate, loving and lovable.

New Talent Goal of Hunt By WJSV

Amateurs Will Go on Air Every Saturday—Novel Programs Are Allotted Several Evening Hours. Series Starts Tonight.

A plan evolved by WJSV for bringing local talent not now engaged in radio work before the microphone will take the form of an amateur talent program each Saturday evening. The first program will be heard from 6 o'clock until midnight this evening.

Any one desiring to be heard through WJSV will be given an audition. A committee has been appointed to hear all applicants and arrangements may be made by calling Metropolitan 1070 or at the studios, 339 Pennsylvania avenue northwest.

The program tonight will include several soloists, musicians and readers who have never been on the air before. An attraction will be a presentation of modern and old classics by an ensemble and group of artists under the direction of Dr. Albert W. Harned, from 8 to 9 o'clock. A chorus of twelve solo voices from the National Capital Choir will give selections from the oratorios and other sacred compositions. The solo numbers will include "Carmena," Lane; "Children of the Moon," Warren; "Mirame, Asi," Fuentes; "Who'll Buy My Lavendar," German; "Love's Greeting," Wilson; "Her Voice," Fischer; "Alleluja," Mozart; "Song of Salome," from "Herodiade;" "Ah, Moon of My Delight," Lehmann; "Yesterday and Today," Spross; "Troposal," Brackett, and piano compositions of MacDowell and Albeniz.

The program will be opened by Bran Hughes' Orchestra, playing a group of the latest popular dance numbers. Mrs. Albert R. Klaas, of Bethesda, Md., soprano soloist at St. John's Episcopal Church, Bradley Lane, will be heard at 6:30 o'clock. She has chosen the Rasbach arrangement of Joyce Kilmer's "Trees," "Mighty Lak a Rose" (Nevin) and "A Dream" (Bartlett).

A. H. Moore, violinist, an old-timer at the station, then will be heard for fifteen minutes. Miss Lorraine Naylor, 14-year-old pianist, will present three numbers at 7 o'clock. This is her first microphone appearance.

Mrs. James S. Vance, wife of the manager of WJSV, formerly a student at the Brooklyn Conservatory of Music, will sing three numbers—"L'Amour, Toujours, L'Amour" (Friml), "One Kiss," from "The New Moon," and "Caroline."

Miss Ruth Dickinson, a reader, will give a one-act play, "Coral Beads." She is the daughter of Representative L. J. Dickinson, of Iowa.

From 9:30 o'clock until midnight the program will continue with amateurs alone, among them Miss Charlotte Wallace, contralto; Linwood E. Dodge, barytone; Frank Young, pianist, and Mae Felka, dramatic reader. Mrs. Felka is worthy matron of Ruth Chapter of the Eastern Star.

The management of WJSV feels that there is plenty of good talent available in Washington and nearby communities and is hopeful that this method of drawing it out will be successful.

Ernie Hare and Billy Jones, known wherever radio is heard, celebrate their sixth consecutive year in radio on July 27. The celebration will consist of signing off the air for a six-week period of rest and recreation, the first the team has had in years. It will not be a vacation from each other, however, the boys say, because they rest and play as they work, with each other.

TODAY'S WOMEN

By EARL MINDERMAN.

JULY 20.

FANNY JANAUSCHEF, the Bohemian actress who captivated an older generation of play-goers in Europe and America, was born this day in Prague, 1830. After a successful career on the European stage, she made her first tour of America in 1867, playing in the German language and receiving the most favorable notices.

But now comes the most surprising part of her career. She returned to Germany where she set herself to an intensive study of the English language. On her second visit to the United States she played the most exacting Shakespearean roles in English. The star retired in 1898.

The Australian author and artist Louise Anne Twamly, was born this day, 1812. Her books which were popular in their time in Australia, England and America include "The Romance of Nature," "My Home in Tasmania," "Over the Straits," "Tasmania: Friends and Foes, Feather and Furred."

Uncle Ray's Corner

A Little Saturday Talk.

A LETTER FROM LAKE TAHOE.

DEAR Corner Readers:

I am writing this in a cabin which is located near the shore of one of the highest lakes in North America, and from my window as I look out I can see the wavy waters.

Lake Tahoe is more than a mile above the level of the sea—6,225 feet to be exact—and all around it are mountains. One of the mountain peaks is capped with snow, and the snow remains all the while—summer after summer.

The other day I met a man from southern California who said that he had never in his life seen falling snow. I wish I could have shown him some of the blizzards I have passed through in the north country—maybe he would then be glad to reutrn to the mild climate of his residence. However, storms and snowfalls play a part in making life interesting for many persons. The storms are seldom enjoyed while they are going on, but they give life variety.

Lake Tahoe is one of the most beautiful lakes I have ever seen—it reminds me of Lake Geneva, Switzerland, near which I lived for a while last summer.

The water of the lake is very cold, too cold for swimming in comfort. That is partly due to the coolness of the summer up this way, and partly to the great depth of the water. At one spot Lake Tahoe is known to be 1,635 feet deep—how would you like to dive down to the bottom! I fancy that to get to the bottom at that deep place you would need to start your dive from an airplane two or three miles up—but then you might crack your head, so I would'nt advise such a dive.

Lake Tahoe is 25 miles long and 12 miles wide.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. W. A. EVANS

NEEDS OUT-OF-DOORS LIFE.

Mrs. D. W. A. writes: My 16-year-old son has a peak on his chest bone, or rather his chest is pointed in the middle, resembling the breast of a chicken. I noticed it first about six months ago. He is perfectly healthy in every way, but I just wondered what causes this condition and if there is anything that should be done about it.

REPLY.

Your son had rickets when he was young.

Perhaps he is a little more-than-average subject to consumption. To offset this the boy should lead an active out-of-doors life.

HAVE A FULL EXAMINATION.

Mrs. S. J. M. writes: Will you please explain about vertigo? I am 65 years old and have had such dizzy spells that at times I can not walk without reaching for support. I am not a hearty eater. I am losing my hearing.

REPLY.

Among the many causes of vertigo are disease of the deeper parts of the ear, high blood pressure, heart disease, eye troubles, brain tumor. My guess is that a thorough examination would disclose the cause of your vertigo.

COLITIS AND T. B.

Y. T. writes:

1 Does amebic colitis turn into tuberculosis?

2. What causes it?

3. Is it curable?

REPLY.

1 No.

2. Infection with a parasite, the ameba coli.

3. Yes, though not easily.

"We've All Gone For a Trolley Ride"

Some years ago during our vacation, we were wandering around in a neighboring city, when we passed a public utilities concern whose every window bore this sign:

"Closed all day Saturday. We've all gone for a trolley ride."

Ever since then we've thought of the happy poster as our own Saturdays-off approached. This year we decided to borrow the idea and give it a little more publicity since it has stood the test of time so well.

We sincerely hope that you'll enjoy it, too, and that it will be sufficient warning that we shan't be around to receive you on Saturdays until August 31st. We all may not be taking a trolley ride, but we won't be here, fond as we are of our favorite department store. So lay in your supplies early in the week. Enjoy our services from Monday till Friday. But don't expect to find us here over the week-ends, for The Hecht Co. is closed all day every Saturday during the Summer.

UTILITIES LIST, RAILS AND STEELS STRONG

Many Stocks Reach New Top Levels, Despite Broad Irregularity.

CALL FUNDS 7 PER CENT

New York, July 19 (A.P.).—Influenced by the reports of the extraordinary vitality of industry rather than by the unfavorable aspects of the credit situation, the bull party had up an impressive assortment of steel, rail and utility shares to record levels in today's stock market.

Considerable irregularity persisted, however, as many traders appeared to be liquidating certain lines in order to accumulate others. This was evidenced in a slack demand for call money despite total sales of over 4,200,000 shares and sharply rising prices in certain sections of the list.

Little new money appeared, but the rate, after renewing at 8 per cent, slipped once more to 7. Time money held firm at 7¾ to 8 per cent, and bankers were inclined to predict firm money for the near future, unless the Federal Reserve definitely changes its policy and starts to relieve the situation. The slight reduction of the New York banks' indebtedness at the Reserve this week and the keen demand for commercial credit in the interior were pointed to as indicators of firm money.

Willing to Take Chances.

Speculators for the advance, however, appeared willing to take their chances in the money market, as the week-end reviews stressed the maintenance of extraordinary activity in industry for this season, and preparations for increased retail trade as result of the higher grain prices. Several satisfactory earnings statements appeared. Gulf States Steel reporting an increase in net of about 100 per cent in the second quarter, and Hudson Motor. Mathieson Alkali and Sun Oil showing large gains. Warner Bros. inaugurated common dividends at the rate of $3 annually.

The Associated Press price indices of twenty leading rails and twenty leading utilities rose 2.0 and 2.5 points respectively, to new high levels, while the index of 50 industrials was practically unchanged.

United States Steel was sent up more than 6 points to a new peak at 208¼. Extraordinarily favorable second quarter earnings statements by such steel companies as Republic, Youngstown and Gulf States have given rise to highly optimistic expectations as to Thirteen States Steel second quarter showing, and the prospect of an extra or increased dividend is widely discussed. Bethlehem, Gulf States, Youngstown, Colorado Fuel and Iron, Vanadium and Republic made substantial gains. In the railway equipments, the leadership was taken by Pocr & Co. B which rose about 4 points to a new peak.

Advance in Utilities.

The advance in the utilities, helped by expectations of further merger announcements, took such issues as American Power & Light, Detroit Edison, Public Service of New Jersey, Engineers Public Service, National Power & Light, and Standard Gas & Electric up 2 to 6 points to new highs. United Gas Improvement sold up about a point further into new high territory, and United Corporation was heavily accumulated.

In the rails, New York Central was sent up nearly 9 points to a record price at 241, and New Haven, Lackawanna, Delaware & Hudson, Union Pacific and Kansas City Southern rose to new peaks. Atchison was depressed about 4 points for a time.

General Electric Up 5 Points.

In the industrials, General Electric made an extreme gain of more than 5 points, and Radio rallied about 3 points, only to lose most of its gain.

Motors were still generally inclined to heaviness, Hudson failing to respond to its earnings report. Studebaker, however, sold up about 3 point.

Oils did little, Pan American B losing a point in realizing. Air Reduction, American Bank Note, Allis Chalmers, Du Pont, United Aircraft, and International Harvester were among issues closing from 2 to 6 points lower.

Commodities were irregular. Wheat again reacted losing 3 to 4 cents of its recent gain on reports of much needed rain in Canada and forecasts of rain in the American Northwest. Corn sagged about a cent on bearish weather. Cotton, on the other hand, was bid up more than $2 a bale when weather reports failed to bear out bearish forecasts. Closing prices showed net gains of $1.35 to $1.90. Foreign exchanges eased, sterling cables dropping back to $4.85.

RECESSION IS SHOWN IN MONEY TURNOVER

Check Payments for Last Week Lower Than for Same Period of 1928.

BOND TRADING IMPROVES

By THOMAS M. CAHILL.

Money turnover during the week ended July 13, as indicated by check payments, was lower than in either the preceding week or corresponding period of 1928, the weekly statement of the Department of Commerce on business conditions showed yesterday.

Operations in steel plants were on a somewhat lower level than in the previous week but were considerably more active than at this time a year ago. The production of bituminous coal during the latest reported week showed a decline from the preceding week but was higher than the week last year, and crude petroleum production showed gains over both periods.

The general level of wholesale prices showed a fractional decline from the preceding week and was more than 1 per cent lower than a year ago. Prices for iron and steel were somewhat lower than in the preceding week but were higher than the comparative period in 1928. Cotton prices, showing no change from the previous week, were lower than a year ago.

Loans and discounts of Federal Reserve member banks showed practically no change from the week before, but were higher than at this time last year, and interest rates on time loans showed no change from the previous week while call loans showed a decline.

Interest rates on both time and call funds were higher than a year ago, while bond prices showed no change from the previous week, but were lower than last year. Prices for stocks showed further gains over both periods. Business failures were more numerous than in the preceding week, but showed a decrease from the comparative period in 1928.

Receipts of cotton during the latest available week showed an advance over the corresponding week last year and receipts revealed a recession from a year ago, while receipts of hogs showed a gain. Wheat receipts were considerably greater than in the corresponding week of 1928.

Quinter Named Trust Officer.

Ralph D. Quinter has been appointed trust officer of the Commercial National Bank, according to announcement made yesterday by President R. Golden Donaldson. He will assume his office August 1.

It is the intention of the bank to broaden the activities of its trust department along lines national banks in larger cities have found necessary in order to afford them the opportunity of rendering a complete banking service to their depositors.

Mr. Donaldson said Mr. Quinter was selected to take charge of what the bank regards as one of its most important units because of his known experience in the administration of estates and his connection with the largest estates administered in the probate and equity branches of the local courts.

Mr. Quinter is well known in local legal and financial circles, having been from 1914 to 1929 the referee in bankruptcy for the District of Columbia. He was born and educated in Washington, graduating from the Georgetown Law School in 1908 and later serving as an instructor at that school.

He was secretary to the late Justice L. E. McComas, of the Court of Appeals, and the late Justice Ashley M. Gould, of the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia. In accepting Mr. Quinter's resignation as referee the chief justice said he was unanimously requested by the court to state they regretted his resignation and expressed appreciation for his efficient services.

Mr. Quinter is a member of the American Bar Association, Society of the Sons of the Revolution, the Metropolitan Club, the Chevy Chase and Princess Anne Country Clubs and of the Delta Chi Fraternity.

Bonds Improve Slightly.

Bond division business improved slightly at yesterday's session of the Washington Stock Exchange, but the consistent decline in stock turnover during the week continued, yesterday's aggregate sales totaling 148, lowest for the week and 18 behind those of Thursday.

Washington Gas closed at 126, ten shares selling at 125½, last sale price, and ten more at the fractional advance.

The latest strong figure indicates that stockholders consider the stock good to keep unless they can get a price above the all-time high of 126¼. Bond volume amounted to $9,000, which was $700 in advance of Thursday's total.

Howe, treasurer, American Security & Trust Co., was reelected chairman; Frederick H. Cox, cashier, Commercial National Bank, was named vice chairman, and Joseph D. Yerkes, assistant cashier, Federal-American National Bank, secretary.

These officers, with Samuel R. Baulsir, cashier, Security Savings & Commercial Bank, and W. H. Harper, of the safe-deposit section of the Washington Loan & Trust Co., form the council of the section.

Cities Service Co. Earnings.

Cities Service Co.'s net earnings for the year ended June 30, 1929, were the largest for any twelve months in the history of the company, amounting to $37,220,093.36. Net earnings for June were $3,403,702.28, also a new high record for any June.

Cities Service Co.'s net earnings for twelve months ended June 30, 1929, were 6.43 times interest and discount on its debentures. Net to stocks and reserves amounted to $31,439,277.43, or 4.64 times preferred stock dividends. This compares with $29,283,439.82, or 4.31 times, for the corresponding period a year ago. TILDEN AND HUNTER CONQUER GERMANS IN SINGLES

CHICAGO WILL WIN FIGHT, IS FEAR

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

NEW YORK, July 19.—The city of Chicago is in danger of another pugilistic uplift movement, less strenuous than the Tunney-Dempsey movement of 1927, but fairly strenuous, nevertheless. The Madison Square Garden Corporation has a prize fight on its hands and is looking for a place in which it may happen under the most prosperous conditions and with a minimum of interference. This is the match between Max Schmeling, the German athlete, who looks like Jack Dempsey, but fights like Gene Tunney and Jack Sharkey, the least culpable of the culprits in the battle of Miami last winter.

It had been planned to present the entertainment at the Yankee Stadium in New York on a date in September, but the Garden Corporation has issued a long diplomatic paper, more couched in sorrow than in anger, stating that the New York prize fight commissioners were driving the important happenings away. There was that in the corporation's statement which implied that this was a major civic disaster to the city of New York, but a civic boon of like proportions to some other community. No other community was mentioned by name, but Chicago, Detroit and Boston were the cities referred to.

Boston Not Threatened With Match.

Boston is not seriously threatened with this boon, as the thrifty New Englanders never have responded very generously to their opportunities, and therefore are not deemed to be deserving. Detroit, lying within a ferry-ride of the moist Canadian shore, and having an element of rather frisky millionaires who are still young enough to enjoy the novelty of affluence, is second on the list. But Chicago, where the customers contributed more than $2,000,000 to make the Tunney-Dempsey enterprise a cultural success, is first.

The same public-spirited citizens of Chicago who cooperated so heartily with Tex Rickard two years ago, seem to be enthusiastic once more, and it is quite likely that within a week the Garden Corporation will decide to reward this fine spirit with a paraphrase of the Tunney-Dempsey program.

Schmeling Refuses to Battle Falling Philip Scott.

The New York prize fight commissioners have refused to sanction the prize fight because Schmeling refuses to fight Falling Phil Scott, the noted English heavyweight tumbler. There is no special reason why Schmeling should fight Falling Philip except that the exclusive American rights to this great prostrate athlete are owned by James J. Johnston, who seems to have something on some of the influential Democrats of the local administration.

Arthur Bulow, a former manager of Schmeling, signed a contract engaging Schmeling to fight some one under the auspices of Humbert Fugazy, the fightless fight promoter. When Mr. Fugazy tried to select an opponent for Schmeling he discovered that all the heavyweights who might have served the purpose were under retainers from the Garden Corporation. He then conferred with Mr. Johnston, and Mr. Johnston said Falling Phil Scott would be pleased to come to America and execute his startling repertoire of falls for the American trade for a certain consideration. Schmeling still refused to honor Bulow's contract, but the prize fight commissioners insisted that he must fight Mr. Johnston's fighter in order that Mr. Johnston should be enabled to make some money.

Garden Pained to Withdraw Spectacle—It Says

Schmeling still refusing to meet Falling Phil, the commissioners forbade him to fight Sharkey here and the Garden Corporation today stated that, much as it pained the firm to withdraw the spectacle, with its concomitant benefits, from New York, this was what they would have to do.

William J. Carey, the engineer who has been amusing himself by bargaining with prize fight managers and counseling with the boxing writers as successor to Tex Rickard, was sponsor of the statement. There was a sad note in the paragraph where he intimated that the corporation' heart bled for New York in this dark hour, but that the interests of the stockholders would have to be protected. The Garden firm had created the customer-demand for the prize fight and could not now accede to the commissioners' desire that the whole program be canceled in order that the deserving Democrat, James J. Johnston, should be enabled to make some money.

The commissioners are likely to

Garden Plans Bout Away From N. Y.

Schmeling, Sharkey to Battle in Chicago Is Indication.

Within Rights in Promoting Match Elsewhere, Says Carey.

NEW YORK, July 19 (A.P.).—The Madison Square Garden Corporation plans to stage the Max Schmeling-Jack Sharkey fight "somewhere outside New York," in spite of objections to this procedure by the New York State Athletic Commission.

This was made clear today in a statement issued by William F. Carey, president of the corporation, and designed as a reply to the commission's attitude in suspending Schmeling. Otherwise, however, no information was forthcoming as to when and where the bout may take place.

The understanding is that Soldier Field, Chicago, scene of the second Dempsey-Tunney fight, is favored as a site, but Boston and either Detroit or Windsor, Canada, are believed to be still under consideration.

Mr. Carey's statement said:

"The New York State Athletic Commission has refused to permit this contest in New York until Schmeling has participated in a bout with Phil Scott, of England, but Schmeling, for reasons of his own and over which we have no control, emphatically and definitely refuses to box Scott.

"As a disciplinary measure the commission prefers that this corporation refrain from promoting a Schmeling-Sharkey bout in another State.

Ruling Not Effective In Other States.

"Madison Square Garden heartily agrees with any such purpose and is ready to do all it can to uphold any rulings of the commission whose honesty of intent is unquestioned, but unfortunately barring Schmeling from this State does not prevent him from boxing in other places. Unfortunately the sport throughout the country is not so organized that an edict by the New York State Athletic Commission can be enforced elsewhere in a measure that fully protects contract rights. There is no national body, as there is in professional baseball, which controls boxing throughout the entire country.

"If the New York State Athletic Commission refuses to permit the Schmeling-Sharkey bout in this State, our corporation freely and cheerfully bows to its authority and respects its ruling. But outside of New York we feel we should be permitted to maintain our rights to promote a Schmeling-Sharkey contest in any other State or country where we are free to do so, and which offers the greatest advantage to us and to the world-wide public."

Sammy Mandell Works To Take Off Weight

Chicago, July 18 (A.P.).—Sammy Mandell, who will defend his world lightweight championship against Tony Canzoneri at Chicago Stadium August 2, must do a lot of hard work to make 135 pounds for the battle. He still scales over 140 pounds and plans increased activity at his camp at the Washington Park race track.

Canzoneri will arrive Saturday to complete his training.

Oxford-Cambridge Add to Tennis Lead

Newport, R. I., July 19 (A.P.).—A steady rain prevented the Oxford-Cambridge tennis team from staging its doubles play with the Harvard-Yale combination here this afternoon at the Casino, although six of the pairs were brave enough to make an attempt. When the play was halted, the visitors led the Prentice Cup play seven matches to two. The postponed matches will be played at 11:30 a. m. tomorrow.

In the three singles matches played this morning, the British collegians were able to add two more victories to their string. Arthur S. Wright of Yale, wore out Young, the visiting captain, 11—13, 6—1, 6—4, in a grueling struggle. In the other net duels, Avory defeated Barry Wood, of Harvard, 10—8, 6—4, and Paul Dericon, of Oxford, disposed of Whitbeck, 6—1, 7—5.

MACKS DOWN TIGERS; GAIN GROUND

Earnshaw Wins Duel, 4-2; A's Lead Is Now 9 Games.

DETROIT, July 19 (A.P.).—The Athletics added half a game to their lead over the Yankees by defeating Detroit, 4 to 2, here today while the champions were dividing a pair with the Indians in Cleveland. The Macks now head the parade by a neat margin of nine engagements.

George Earnshaw gave the Tigers just five hits, and at no time faltered in his control of the situation. Detroit did gain a momentary advantage by scoring one in the fifth on McManus' triple and an infield out, but the Athletics scored two runs in the sixth and two more in the seventh. The home team got a consolation run in the ninth on a pass to Heilmann and a double by McManus.

Owen Carroll went the route against Earnshaw, giving eight singles and one double.

Yankees and Indians Divide Double-Header

Cleveland, Ohio, July 19 (A.P.).—Lou Gehrigs' twenty-third home run helped the Yankees to overwhelm the Indians by 7 to 2 in the first game of a double header here today, but the home team assaulted George Pipgras and his rescuers with vigor in the nightcap, to win by 11 to 3. The even break cost the champions half a game in the pennant race, as the Athletics defeated Detroit and stretched their margin to nine games.

In the second game, Ferrell, recent victor over the Athletics, held the Yankees to seven hits and fanned nine. Frank Nekola, Holy Cross southpaw, who made his major league debut, was the only Yankee boxman to show any stuff in this contest. Old Tom Zachary pitched good ball to win the opener.

Babe Ruth left the opening game in the first inning after pulling up lame on the bases and failed to appear in the second game. Gehrig's homer enabled him to take first place from Ruth in the league race.

Nats Defeated By Browns, 7 to 3

Fail to Get Man Past Second Off Stewart Until Eighth.

Braxton No Puzzle to Browns, Who Lead From Start.

Special to The Washington Post.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., July 19.—Facing such effective southpaw pitching that prevented a runner from advancing past first base for seven innings, the Nats' brief winning streak was stopped today when they were beaten by the Browns, 7 to 3.

Walter Stewart, who flips only occasionally for the Browns was the villian in the case for Walter Johnson's sixth place team. He mixed control with a slow assortment of curves and was close to a perfect pitcher until he coasted during the closing two innings and generally permitted the Nats to finish with three useless runs.

Besides his work on the mound, Stewart suddenly became a fence buster to the extent of clearing the bases with two out with a slashing double to left. This drive scoring three, came in the fourth inning and put the Browns so far in front that the Nats were unable to make the game interesting down the stretch.

Braxton Has Off-Day And is Punished.

Garland Braxton was the victim of the Browns' attack. It was one of those few off days for the Nats' left hander. He retired the first batter of the game when Lu Blue was flipped out by Buddy Myer. But four successive whistling hits followed. McNeely singled to center. Manush almost fractured Cronin's shins with a single, Schulte doubled scoring McNeely, and Kress breezed a line single to left, sending Manush across but Goslin sent a perfect throw to Ruel and Schulte was cut down trying to trail Heine at the plate. O'Rourke's fly to West closed the inning.

The Nats were put down in order in the first. They repeated it in the second with the exception of Ruel's single. Ruel was caught trying to steal and wasted his drive. West, Hayes and Braxton could not put one of Stewart's curves to open territory in the third. Boss started the fourth with a single only to have Rice bound into a fast double play and Goslin filed to Schulte.

Cronin's Error Starts Browns On 3-Run Attack.

Cronin started the Browns to their rally in the fourth, giving the home side three unearned runs. Schulte reached second when the short stop threw over Boss' head. Kress bunted a pop to Braxton. O'Rourke singled off Cronin's glove, Schulte reaching third. On Brannon's tap to Braxton, Schulte was caught at the plate. Ferrell singled past Cronin, filling the bases, and then came Stewart's double to left to score three runs. Blue was safe on Hayes' fumble and McNeely put an easy fly in Goslin's glove.

Myer was a base runner in the

Helen Hicks Eliminated In New York Tourney

Rye, N. Y., July 19 (A.P.).—Miss Helen Hicks, Long Island golf ace, was eliminated today in the semifinal round of the Westchester Country Club Invitation Tournament by Mrs. H. A. Marsellis, of Hartford, Conn., 7 and 5. Her defeat was the most sensational upset of the tournament.

Gledhill Western Net Finalist; Pare Is Idle

Chicago, July 19 (A.P.).—Keith Gledhill, Santa Barbara, Calif., star, will play in the title round of the singles of the Western tennis championships. He reached the final test today only after a terrific battle with Clifford Sutter, young New Orleans sensation, at Skokie County Club.

Sutter, who left a trail of seeded players in his wake, fought Gledhill to a standstill, losing in four sets. Gledhill easily took the opening set, 6—1, but bowed to the Southerner in the second by 10—12. Sutter eased off and dropped the third at 6—2, saving himself by sloughing the last two games. He rallied time after time in the fourth set, but succumbed, 14—12, after his terrific efforts left him almost exhausted. Gledhill played erratically, but had the endurance to outlast the Southern youth.

The other semifinals match, between Emmett Pare, of Chicago, defending champion, and Ellsworth Vines, of Pasadena, Calif., was postponed until tomorrow.

GERMAN NETMEN BEATEN BY TILDEN AND HUNTER

Henry Miller Service.

Germany's Davis Cup hopes, brighest in years, suffered a shock yesterday in the opening singles play, when Bill Tilden defeated Hans Moldenhauer (left) and Francis Hunter conquered Daniel Prenn (right). The two Germans meet Allison and Van Ryn today in the doubles. Prenn is Polish by extraction, Russian by birth and German by adoption.

D. C. DOUBLES PAIR GAINS FINALS

Mitchell-King Oppose Jacobs Brothers in Midatlantics.

Special to The Washington Post.

BALTIMORE, Md., July 18.—The Middle Atlantic tenis doubles will be an intercity affair between Washington and Baltimore, begining at 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon on the grass courts at the Baltimore Country Club.

This was made possible today when the Washington team of Dooley L. Mitchell and Gwynn King defeated another Baltimore semifinalist in John A. Magee and Warren K. Magruder.

Five sets were rquired before the Capital pair hosted their colors by the scores of 2—6, 6—4, 6—4, 5—7, 6—4.

The match was one of the most stubborn ever fought on the Roland Park courts.

The Jacob brothers, Eddie and Billy, will battle it out with Mitchell and King for the championship honors tomorrow.

The Mitchell-Kink and Magee-Magruder teams were just about evenly matched this afternoon as the score indicates. Washington scored 150 points and Baltimore 149, while each team won 25 games.

Baltimoreans Take First Three Games.

The Baltimore pair won the first three games in the opening set, lost two, and then came back and carried off three more. Magee and Magruder started out like they would clean up the court with the visitors in the second set by winning the first three games.

The Washingtonians staged a rally and won the next five games in a row, the longest streak by either side in the match. Baltimore won the ninth game and Washington the tenth.

The District pair brought through Magruder's serve to start the third set, but Baltimore did likewise and then won Magee's serve. Washington bunched three games before Baltimore was able to break through. Washing-

Chisox Beat Red Sox 2-1, as Errors Decide

Chicago, Ill., July 19 (A.P.).—Boston was unable to solve the fast ones of Thomas today and the White Sox made it two straight, 2 to 1. The Red Sox made only six scattered hits off Thomas. There were no earned runs in the contest. Two errors and Kamm's double accounted for the Chicago runs, while a muff by Cissell accounted for the Boston tally. Art Shires singled in the sixth inning to hit safely in his eighteenth game. Russell worked for Boston and gave but seven hits.

Ex-Caddy's 64, Six Strokes Under Course Record, Tops in Met Open

By BRIAN BELL
(Associated Press Sports Writer).

LONG BEACH, N. Y., July 19 (A.P.).—Arthur B. Potter, a stocky, 24-year-old former caddy of Brooklyn, tossed a golf monkey wrench squarely in the center of the machinery of the metropolitan open championship late this afternoon when he drifted camly in from the eighteenth green of the difficult Lido course and nonchalantly announced he had compiled a score of 64 in his second round.

As the former ball hawk of the Marine and Field Club, Brooklyn, had a score of 80 yesterday, his 36-hole total of 144 placed him 1 nthe lead for the first two rounds, wresting the honor from Leo Diegel, whose 145 was compiled through a par 72 yesterday and not quite so good 73 today.

Diegel's lead had stood most of the day and seemed safe from attack in any quarter when Potter reported with a car dahowing 33 out and 31 in, made up of ten fours and eight threes.

Score of 8 Under Par Clips Six from Record.

The amazing score was eight under par and clipped six strokes from the course record in competition, held jointly by Macdonald Smith, Bobby Jones and Jack Forrester. Smith and Jones made theirs in qualifying rounds for the United States open, while Forrester's was scored yesterday in the current competition.

Potter's card showed nine birdies and he was over par on only one hole, the short eighth where he took four after being in a trap.

POTTER'S CARD.

The Brooklyn player is "unattached" at this time but said he was "looking for a job."

Diegel and Willi Bill Mehlhorn played together and finished all square for the day with a pair of 73's and were only a stroke apart for the two rounds. Mehlhorn standing at 146 after a bad finish.

In a triple tie for fourth place at 148 stood Long Jim Barnes, Wee Bobby Cruickshank and Crac Wood.

The amateur leader today, Maurice McCarthy, jr., of Georgetown University, scored 71, but could place no bet-

MANGIN BOWS TO DOEG AT BROOKLINE

G. U. Star Beaten in 5 Sets; Mercur Is Other Finalist.

BROOKLINE, Mass., July 19 (A.P.).—Two former Longwood Bowl tennis tournament winners—Fritz Mercer, of Bethlehem, Pa., and John Doeg, of Santa Monica, Calif.—won their semifinal matches in the thirty-seventh annual play here today and will clash tomorrow for the right to have their names inscribed a second time on the historic cup.

William T. Tilden 2d, winner in the Davis Cup play today in Berlin against Germany, is the only player to have two legs on the present cup, the eighth Longwood Bowl. Mercur, former Lehigh player, seventh in the national ranking, was seeded first in the tournament, and Doeg, Stanford University sophomore, ranking eighth nationally, was seeded second.

In the hardest match today Doeg came from behind after trailing two sets to one at the rest period to defeat Gregory Mangin, Georgetown University student, of Newark, N. J. The scores were 6—4, 5—7, 5—7, 6—3, 6—3.

Mercur dropped the first set of his match with J. Gilbert Hall, of South Orange, N. J., 10 to 8, after leading, 4 to 1, but he ran over the next three sets easily, 6—4, 6—2, 6—4.

West Meets East In Women's Singles.

The West will meet the East also in the finals of the women's singles as the result of the semifinals today in the Longwood Cricket Club tournament. Miss Dorothy Andrus, of Stamford, Conn., won a three-set match from Miss Margaret Blake, of Lenox, 6—4, 2—6, 6—4, while Mrs. Lawrence A. Harper, of San Francisco, defeated Miss Ethel Burkhardt, of the same city, 7—5, 6—3.

The match between Doeg, 1927 tournament winner and Mangin, recent finalist in the intercollegiates, was marked by much volleying, both players going to the net frequently. When Doeg could not break through with his speedy serve he relied on an accurate chop stroke game to give him the advantage.

Mercur and Hall, after their singles match, reached the finals in the doubles play by putting out Frank X. Shields, of New York, and Mangin, 6—4, 3—6, 6—2, 6—2.

Bradshaw Harrison, San Bruno, Calif., and Kenneth Appel, South Orange, N. J., defeated Malcolm T. Hill and Henry L. Johnson, jr., both of Newton, 6—2, 6—2, 6—3, 2—6, 6—2.

In women's doubles, semifinal round, Mianne and Sarah Palfrey, both of Brookline, defeated Miss Marjorie Gladman, Santa Monica, Calif., and Miss Alice Francis, East Orange, N. J., 6—4, 6—2.

Miss Josephine Cruickshank and Mrs. Lawrence A. Harper, both of San Francisco, defeated Miss Dorothy Andrus, Stamford, Conn., and Miss Virginia Hilleyar, Philadelphia, 6—1, 6—0.

WAR EAGLE PAYS $91, WINNING ARLINGTON FEATURE

McLean Horse In Front All The Way

Lasts in Hard Drive to Take Decision From Fairy Maiden.

Excalibar Cops Third Money, Paying Backers $35.08.

ARLINGTON PARK RACE TRACK, Ill., July 19 (A.P.).—War Eagle, the 5-year-old son of Man o' War—Earline from the E. B. McLean stable and paying the handsome price of $91.10 for a $2 win mutuel, scampered away with the Woodlands purse, the feature event on an ordinary card here this afternoon. Fairy Maiden, paying $17.68 for $2, carried off second money and Excalibur, paying $35.08 for a $2 show ticket, was third. Nine of the ten entrants started. The race was worth $1,050 to the McLean stable and was run in 1:38 2-5.

War Eagle was sent into the lead at the start and, making every post a winning one, lasted to win in a hard drive by a head. Fairy Maiden away well, was taken back off the early pace, then when let down entering the stretch moved up stoutly to take the place by a length and a half. Excalibur, always close up to the leader, weakened in the final drive but lasted to take the third money by a length from Brown Flash.

Long Shots Again Run Rampant at Chicago Track.

Long shots again ran rampant today as seven of them crashed through large fields for victories on a lightning-fast track.

Tela, a 2-year-old filly, graduated from the maiden ranks as she won the opening race—a victory that was worth $49.72 to win, $35.54 to place and $14.08 to show. The third-place honors for the day—if putting over a long shot may be considered an honor—went to R. C. Thatcher's 6-year-old gelding, Grand Dad, in the sixth race, with an apprentice, A. Schenck, in the saddle. He paid $28.58 for a $2 mutuel ticket.

Stars and Bars Comes from Rear to Win Empire Feature.

Empire Race Track, July 19 (A.P.).—Greentree Stable's Stars and Bars, well played at 5 to 1, won the White Stone Handicap at a mile and seventy yards here today. Hard Tack, 20 to 1, was second and St. Henell, 6 to 5 favorite, third. St. Henell dashed into the lead but, going around the first turn, Burke rushed Hard Tack up on the outside and they ran close together for the first seven furlongs.

St. Henell was the first to show signs of weakening and, as the field swung into the stretch, Stars and Bars came around on the outside and ran into the lead. He drew away to win easily by two lengths.

COLLYER'S COMMENT on the SPORT of KINGS

BY HERBT. P. COLLYER

HELP! Help! Or as Harvey, the wake, would say, ain't I never going to get no help? The reference today is the Arlington Handicap with twenty grand added over the one and one-eighth mile journey and for which positively the best of the all-aged division is named to face Starter Dickerson.

In a word it's a real treat to have SUN BEAU, MISSTEP, OSMAND, SUN EDWIN, BUDDY BAUER, DOWAIGAIC, SUN FIRE, et al, brought together under handicap adjustment. Space does not permit me going into an analytical discussion of the respective merits of the various candidates. Suffice to say I believe SUN BEAU has a slight pull in the weights as against OSMAND, SUN EDWIN and MISSTEP. The latter every inch a sturdy racer and honest to the core, has every ounce he is entitled to carry, but again fortune favors in that he has drawn the rail position. However, he will not have Mack G - ner to do the piloting and he will miss the lad, I feel sure. Like all classics, the race is not without its dark horses. This distinction falls to the lot of DOWAIGAC, which, in my belief, is just a bit more than ordinarily rated. My, what a horse race is in prospect!

In the day's opener, it is my understanding the Bryson connections intend setting the works in on SCOTLAND, which drew number 1 position. However, there was quite a bit of money for GOLDEN CANOPY overnight, and they may know something. Then comes CANDY PIG and TYROL. Let your conscience be your guide.

If you can split ILLEGITIMATE and ESKIMO out, then you're a smart one. The breaks will make the winner. FRANCES MILWARD and FOLKING are also very close together in the fourth with the latter having a good chance to spill the frijoles. This is the hide on which Pator got the air. Tab his form closely.

Over at Dorval the 1929 renewal of the Quebec Derby is down for decision. On paper it would seem the SALMON ENTRY was a double-barreled cinch. Either horse can win. You may, of course, differ with me, but that's my story and I'm going to stick to it.

Ye wekkum.

25-Day Race Meeting Opens at Bainbridge

Cleveland, Ohio, July 19 (A.P.).—Bainbridge Park race track, in Geauga County, near the Cuyahoga County (Cleveland) line, will open tomorrow for the second 25-day race meeting of the season. This announcement was made today, one week after activity by Sheriff E. J. Hanratty had stopped a 22-day meeting at Thistledown, Cleveland track, in a campaign against the contribution betting system.

No effort was made to interfere with racing at Bainbridge during the previous meeting, although Gov. Myers Y. Cooper and Attorney General Bettman conferred with Richard Bostwick, Geauga County prosecutor. It was said then that Bostwick assured them no more racing would be permitted at Bainbridge if the disputed system was put in use.

ARMY AND NAVY TEAMS IN LEECH CUP TENNIS TODAY

Service Court Supremacy At Stake

Van Vliet Plays Watt in No. 1 Singles at Chevy Chase.

Strategy in Naming of Players Fails; No. 2 Double Crucial.

HAVING failed in their respective efforts to outmaneuver the opposition in the assignment of individual positions, the tennis teams of the Army and Navy will today carry their annual battle for the Leech Cup, emblematic of the net supremacy of the service, onto the courts of the Chevy Chase Club with their respective chances of victory apparently even.

Captains of the rival teams uncovered some strategic moves yesterday in naming the positions of the singles and doubles players, but neither gained an advantage. Without knowledge of each other's moves, the team leaders so placed their players that the outcome would appear to depend on the result of the No. 2 doubles match in which Col. Walt C. Johnson and Lieut. David D. Hedekin of the Army will meet Commander C. C. Gill and Capt. W. S. Anderson. Barring upsets in the other matches, the teams should divide the remaining matches equally.

Maj. Robert C. Van Vliet, captain of the Army squad, as well as champion of that branch of the service, was named to play No. 1 in singles against Lieut. Richard Morgan Watt, jr., rated No. 3 among the Navy contingent and the victim of Maj. Van Vliet last year in three hard sets.

Ensign Howard Dropped Into No. 2 Position.

Ensign W. E. Howard, jr., rated No. 1 among the Navy stars, was dropped into No. 2 position to engage Lieut. S. K. Robinson, generally rated No. 3 among the Army racqueters. Ensign J. M. Farrin classed as second choice to Ensign Howard among Navy's eligibles, will play the No. 3 assignment. Army countered by naming Lieut. Hedekin, rated No. 4, to play at No. 3.

Army moved Maj. T. D. Finley, who might well be rated No. 2, into the No. 4 match in which Commander Gill will represent the Navy.

Maj. Van Vliet and Maj. Finley were well placed at No. 1 for Army doubles competition, but Navy named Lieut. Comdr. Godfrey and Lieut. Watt, rated No. 2, to meet the Army's strongest combination. Ensigns Howard and Farrin, probably the strongest Navy team, has been shifted to the No. 3 event and Army switched its second ranking pair, Maj. W. M. Robertson and Lieut. Robinson, to that event.

No. 2 Doubles Match Finds Foes Equal in Ranking.

Thus the only match in which players of equal rating will meet will be the No. 2 doubles match. Provided the four singles and other two doubles matches are decided on comparative strength of the contenders and no upsets occur, on paper the Johnson and Hedekin-Anderson and Gill match would actually decide the 1929 Leech Cup championship.

Should the ultimate decision hinge on this match, the chances of another Navy victory would be enhanced. These two teams have not met since the 1927 Leech Cup matches, when the Navy veterans completely outplayed the veteran Col. Johnson and the youthful Lieut. Hedekin, then fresh from the parade ground at West Point. Gill and Anderson literally chopped their way to victory on that occasion, each taking a successful turn at the net. The first set went ten games before the Navy pair triumphed, 6—4, but their versatile game was even more effective in the second and deciding set, 6—2. The Middie veterans were not available for play last year, but they have lost none of their court cunning, Lieut. Comdr. Godfrey announced in selecting them for the Navy team.

Both Teams Fortified In Reserve Material.

Both teams will be fortified with plenty of capable reserve material. In addition to those assigned to play for Army the following are eligible to compete in case of emergency: Maj. T. S. Paschal, Maj. L. S. Hobbs, Maj. J. H. Hills and Lieut. T. L. Sherburne. Navy reserves include Lieut. D. C Redgrave, Lieut. R. H. Dole, Ensign C. D. Griffin, and Ensign J. K. McCue.

The service rivals will take the courts today with Army seeking to break the supremacy of its rival, which has been returned the victor the past three years. In 1924, the year the Leech Cup was placed in competition by Abner Y. Leech, one of the istrict's most ardent followers of the net game, Army swept the seven matches. The Army forces repeated the following year but by a 4 to 3 margin. Navy's successive victories have been by 5—2, 7—0 and 4—3 counts.

Twice the ultimate victor has been decided in doubles competition. In 1925 Army retained the cup by taking the deciding doubles contest. Last year the Navy netmen won the deciding doubles match after dividing the singles. The manner in which the players are matched for today's play and the equal strength of the contending teams has led tennis followers in general to conclude that the rival hopes of victory depend on their success in the doubles matches.

Four Singles Matches Start Simultaneously.

Robert S. Newby, chairman of the Middle Atlantic Lawn Tennis Association committee supervising the matches, announced last night that the four singles matches will be started simultaneously at 2:15 o'clock on the four courts adjacent to the Chevy Chase Club tennis house. He also named the following umpires to officiate: Owen Howenstein, John Seward, Joseph Rutley, Tinsley Garnett and Everett Simon.

The rival teams engaged in light practice sessions yesterday as a final preparation for today's matches. The Navy players have been practicing for the past week at the Chevy Chase Club, while the Army stars have been perfecting their play on the courts of the Columbia Country Club.

The rival team captains yesterday expressed satisfaction with the result of the manner in which the players have been placed and each expressed confidence that his team would gain the victory.

Both leaders expressed the belief that every match will be hard fought and that the ultimate victor will gain the title by a narrow margin.

More interest has been developed this year than at any time since the inaugurating of the service classic. Arrangements have been made to entertain a record gallery by the Chevy Chase Club tennis committee, of which Lawrence A. Baker is chairman.

CHICAGO MAY WIN FIGHT, PEGLER FEARS

staid fast for James J. Johnston as they have done many times in the past and if he does not make some money it will be through no fault of the commission. Nor will the loss of the major uplift ceremony of the 1929 season seriously hinder the development of the metropolis.

There was a like case in 1926 when the commissioners refused to sanction the first Tunney-Dempsey match. In that case another group of deserving precinct toilers owned shares in Harry Wills, the melancholy negro heavyweight, and the commissioners demanded that Dempsey fight Wills or noboby if he fought in New York. Acceding to this, Mr. Rickard took the Dempsey-Tunney spectacle to Philadelphia and drew about $2,000,000, which was about $500,000 more than he could have collected at one of the ball parks in New York.

If the prize fight is held in Chicago, the scene will be Soldiers Field in Grant Park, where Tunney met Dempsey in their return bout and spent somewhere between 11 and 14 seconds lolling on the canvas in the seventh round. There might be some protest from the Chicago citizens, who have bought stock in the large inclosed sport stadium on the West Side, but Mr. Carey and his production manager, Frank Bruen, who formerly managed the Arlington Race rack in Chicago, seem confident that the civic uplift element can win over these stockholders.

OSCAR MELLILO HURT.

St. Louis, July 19 (A.P.).—Oscar Melillo, second baseman for the St. Louis Browns, was injured in batting practice before today's game with Washington and it was announced he will be out of the game probably for two weeks. One of Chad Kimsey's fast balls struck Melillo's right hand and split the little finger.

BIG U. S. FIELD IN CANADIAN OPEN GOLF

Hagen, Diegel Among 64 Americans to Seek Title.

TORONTO, July 19 (A.P.).—One hundred and forty-seven professional and amateur golfers from Canada and the United States, including the giants of the links of both countries, will make up the field for the Canadian open championship which starts at the Kanawaki Golf Club, Montreal, next Thursday. The entries include Walter Hagen, holder of the British open title, and Leo Diegel, 1928 Canadian champion and also winner in 1924 and 1925.

There are 64 contenders from the United States, or more than one-third of the total field. The remainder are Canadians, to whom 27 are amateurs. The latter group includes C. Ross Somerville, of London, Ont., Canadian amateur champion and recent winner of the Ontario title, as well as four other Canadian amateur title holders: Don Carrick, Toronto; C. C. Fraber, William McLuckie and G. H. Turpin, all of Montreal.

4 Previous U. S. Winners Of Title to Compete.

Besides Diegel, three former American winners of the Canadian open title will be on hand to attempt to regain the honor. They are Tommy Armour, now entered from Toronto, winner in 1927; MacDonald Smith, of Great Neck, N. Y., winner in 1926, and Al Watrous, of Royal Oak, Mich., winner in 1922.

The United States entries include such other outstanding stars as Gene Sarazen, of Flushing, N. Y.; George Von Elm, of Royal Oak, Mich.; Abe G. Espinosa, of Wheeling, Ill.; Johnny Farrell, 1928 United States open champion; John Golden, of Paterson, N. J.; Bill Mehlhorn, of New York; Joe Turnesa, of White Plains, N. Y., and Mike Brady, of Mamaroneck, N. Y.

Seventy-two holes of play will decide the championship, which Diegel won last year with a score of 282. The record for the tournament was made in 1919 by the late Douglas Edgar, of Atlanta, with a score of 278.

Eighteen holes will be played Thursday, another eighteen holes Friday, and those within 20 strokes of the leader for the first 36 holes will play 36 holes on Saturday.

sixth, drawing a walk, but Ruel, Cronin and West were retired in order. Braxton had little with which to deceive in his fifth, the Browns getting another run on a single by Schulte and a double by Kress.

Johnson withdrew Braxton after this bombardment and with one out in the sixth, Spencer batted for the pitcher. He offered an easy fly to Schulte and Boss popped to O'Rourke.

Liska Finishes Game, Yielding One Run.

Liska finished the game for the Nats and, barring the sixth when Ferrell singled to center, went to second on a wild pitch, to third on Stewart's sacrifice and across the plate on Blue's infield out, he was in command.

The third hit of the game for the Griffs was a single by Rice in the eighth. He was forced by Goslin and the next two were retired.

Cronin opened the eighth with a double to left and was the first member of Johnson's side to move past first. West was thrown out by Stewart. Hayes walked. Spencer singled to left, Cronin scoring. Boss scored Hayes with a single to right, but the rally stopped when Rice tapped to Stewart and Goslin grounded to Brannon.

The Griffs finished with a run on a double by Myer, an infield single by Gooch and a wild throw by Brannon. The teams will play a double-header tomorrow.

The fourth set was peculiar, each team winning its own serve until ten games had been played. Mages won his and the locals then took Mitchell's to end the set.

District Pair Wins Three in Row.

Magee again gave Baltimore fans a rooting chance as he won his serve to start the final set. The Washington pair then won three in a row. Magee once more came to the rescue and won his serve. King had luck on his serve and won, but Magruder came back and carried off his to make the games stand 4—3—4 in favor of Washington.

Baltimore had an equal chance to win the eighth game after it went to deuce, but the Washingtonians fought hard and won by a point margin of 5—3. Magee came back and won his serve, 4——1, but King's service was not to be denied and the match was over.

9 Instructors Are Added to University

Intramural Athletics to Be Expanded This Term.

Mass Games to Feature Sports for Sophomores.

Special to The Washington Post.

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va., July 19.—The department of physical education of the University of Virginia will be expanded to include a staff of nine professors and instructors for the season of 1929-30, which will open September 15.

Intramural athletics will be given attention during the coming season and men from all branches and departments of the university will be brought together in a spirit of friendly rivalry.

Dr. William A. Lambeth will continue as director of the department and as teacher of hygiene and corrective gymnastics. Lawrence T. Ludwig, associate professor, will be supervisor of physical activity and R. C. Heidloff, recently elected assistant professor, will be in charge of the first-year course and of advanced gymnastics.

Robert N. Hopkins will be instructor in charge of the second-year course and intramural activities. There will be five assistant instructors: W. H. Hobson, assistant in advanced gymnastics and intramural activities; L. I. Bowman, in charge of swimming and assistant in advanced gymnastics; Lee H. Beasley, assistant in the second-year course and advanced gymnastics; H. J. Herbert, assistant in first-year course and advanced gymnastics, and Dexter S. French, assistant in second-year course and intramural activities.

Two Years of Physical Education Required.

All students registered in the college must take two years of physical education, to be completed at the end of the student's second year. But the activities of this department include also the men who come to the gymnasium for exercise as well as those who are taking required work.

The full term of the required first-year course is made up of mass calisthenics, apparatus work and special drills. During the winter term the fundamentals of boxing, wrestling, swimming and basket ball are stressed. The recreation aspect of physical training is emphasized during the third term, with attention given to indoor and playground baseball, volley and service ball, outdoor track and swimming.

The course in hygiene taught by Dr Lambeth includes lectures for three hours a week during one term.

Mass Games for Second Year Men.

Mass games constitute the major part of the program for second-year men. In the fall the events stressed are soccer, touch football and cross-country running; during the winter, basket ball, swimming and hand ball make the indoor season enjoyable, or heavy gymnastics may be elected. The spring term calls for an outdoor program, including baseball, volley ball, service ball and Red Cross life-saving instruction.

Men who are on the first-year squads or on the varsity squads during their second year are excused from physical training so long as they are competing in intramural athletics. The sports included are football and cross-country in the fall, basket ball, boxing, wrestling and swimming during the winter, and baseball, track and lacrosse in the spring.

Prof. Ludwig is working with James G. Driver, the new director of athletics, to enlarge the program of intramural activities, with a special program of contests during each of the three terms in the school year.

ALEXANDRIA SPORTS

Special to The Washington Post.

ALEXANDRIA, Va., July 19.—The baseball game scheduled to be played here tomorrow afternoon between teams of the police departments of this city and Richmond has been called off by the Richmonders, a telegram canceling the game having been received today by Manager Lawrence Padgett. The wire states that several of the Richmond players have been injured.

Padgett is endeavoring to arrange a game with some Washington team for tomorrow, in order to avoid disappointing the fans who have been looking forward to today's contest.

The Washington Red Sox, one of the best teams in the District, will oppose Jake Lunsford's Columbia Firemen at 4 o'clock tomorrow afternoon on Haydon Field. Jake Lunsford or Joe Padgett will probably be on the mound for the Columbias, with Bob Darley behind the bat.

Sunday afternoon the Columbias will meet an old rival, when Pop Kremb's Liberty A. C. will cross the river. This game will start at 2:30 o'clock and should be full of action.

Prex Wilson, director of the city recreation department, is now receiving entries for the municipal tennis tournament which will be held on the high school courts beginning July 29. W. Cameron Roberts won the men's singles and Joe Duncan the junior honors in the matches last year. It is understood a large number of racqueters have announced their intention of entering this year's games.

The Belle Haven Country Club golfers will go to Purcellville tomorrow afternoon to engage in the fourth annual Tri-State match of the 1929 season, and will be represented by a team composed of Howell, Brown, Sebrell, Pierce, Burns, Clem, Kane and Dr. Moore.

The Belle Haven Club holds third position in the club standings in the Tri-State Association, Mannsfield Hall, of Fredericksburg, being in first place with 53 points; Winchester second with 40½ points; Belle Haven, 38; Staunton, 35, Martinsburg, 32½, and Boyce, 17. The Mannsfield players landed second place in the Staunton tourney, June 2, when the Belle Haven golfers only scored 7½ points.

The first round matches in the men's championship tournament are now being played and must be completed by tomorrow afternoon. The winner last year was C. C. Brown.

VIENNA WOULD PLAY.

7th Annual Public Parks Net Tourney Opens Today

Considine and Mitchell Outstanding Favorites in Singles; Many Doubles Teams Are Given Even Chance for Title.

BOB CONSIDINE, defending champion, and Dooley Mitchell, partner in the doubles championship last year, are the outstanding favorites for the singles title in the seventh annual public parks tennis tournament which gets under way today on the Henry Park and Monument Grounds courts. Play at both places will commence at 2 p. m.

While a host of capable racqueters will be on hand to challenge for the singles crown, none likely will stop Considine or Mitchell, in the opinion of tournament officials and close observers of public parks tennis.

Past performances this season indicate that Mitchell will make plenty of trouble for Considine if these two should come together in the final match. Mitchell, former Western High School ace, scored a surprising victory over the veteran, Tom Mangan, and extended Clarence Charest, the ultimate champion, in the recent District of Columbia tournament at Edgemoor. Considine did not meet Mangan, but bowed to Charest much more easily than did Mitchell.

Many Doubles Teams Have Good Chance.

Considerable uncertainty exists in the minds of the experts regarding the selection of the doubles champions in the current tourney. Mitchell and Bill Buchanan won the title in 1928, but this does not seem to rate them much higher than several other combinations, among which are the Considine-Shepard, Shore-Robinson, Welsh-Goubeau, and O'Neil-Shoemaker teams.

The chances of Maurice O'Neil and George Shoemaker are considered especially good. They reached the semi-finals last year, the finals in 1927, and this year have been playing successfully on the Potomac Park courts. Shoemaker is said to be regaining the form that stamped him one of the city's best junior players five years ago, when he captured the junior title. He was a mainstay of the net forces of Central High about that time.

Considine, who was seeded No. 1, will start play today in the first round, but Mitchell has been favored with the draw of a bye and will not have to take the courts until tomorrow in the second round. Considine will oppose Johnson at the Monument Grounds. Mitchell's opponent tomorrow will be Willis, the match being scheduled on the Potomac Park courts.

Three Seeded Players In Action Today.

Of the eight seeded players in the singles, two others besides Considine will compete today. They are Larry Phillips, George Washington University star, No. 5, who will meet Leibster at Monument, and Herb Shepard, No. 7, who will tackle Haney at Henry Park. The other seeded players who will swing into action tomorrow in addition to Mitchell, who is No. 2, are Maurice O'Neil, No. 3; Frank Shore, District junior champion, No. 4; Hugh Trigg, No. 6, and Everett Simon, No. 8.

Play in the singles will continue tomorrow on four courts, with Potomac Park and Rock Creek Park to be used in addition to Henry Park and Monument Grounds.

Doubles will commence Monday and will occupy all four courts to the exclusion of singles. Beginning Tuesday and until the finals are reached, all competition will be staged at Henry Park and Monument Grounds. The finals will be held at Rock Creek Park.

Winners in singles and doubles will be sent to the National Public Parks Tennis championships at Buffalo, August 19-24. Mitchell is ranked thirteenth nationally among public parks players in the singles, while Considine is named sixteenth. Mitchell and Buchanan are ranked seventh in the doubles.

Collegians Return To Game for Today

In order to defend their laurels won last year, the Collegian Seniors have reorganized for a single game today with the Brookland Boys Club Nine on Brookland diamond at 5 o'clock. These teams will meet for the sixth time, the Collegians having won last year after losing four in a row.

Don Grist, manager of the Collegians, would like to hear from all former Collegian players today at Lincoln 8618.

THE DOUBLE -- By EDGAR WALLACE

SYNOPSIS OF PRECEDING CHAPTERS.

Dick Staines, department inspector, happens upon mysterious intruders in the deserted house of jovial Walter Derrick, neighbor of Tommy Weald, whom Dick is visiting. One of them, a woman, amazes him by her striking resemblance to Mary Dane, a beautiful nurse, whom he has lately met at Brighton, where she is caring for a Mr. Cornfort. When Lordy Brown, escaped convict from Africa, attacks Mary, insisting that she is Mary Devilliers, of Cape Town, Dick concludes that the girl has a double who is involved in a criminal gang that is attempting to get something for nothing—and that something the portion of Derrick's inheritance which has never been found. Dick extends a wire from Tommy's house to Derrick's and the alarm rings while he is talking to the butler. He hurries into the Derrick house and smells a peculiar scent called Sans About.

The policeman explained. He knew a young lady who worked in a perfume shop—a refined and lady-like occupation—and she had once introduced him to the misty fragrance of Sans Atout.

"According to my young lady it costs four pounds an ounce. You can't mistake it, sir—a sort of mixture of roses and cedar wood."

"You fascinate me," said the irritated Dick. "Now will you use your nose and see if you can smell a cold-blooded murderer?"

His blood turned to ice. From somewhere in the room came a thin, quiet, low gurgle of laughter.

"Is that you?"

"Me," sir?" said the constable. "I couldn't laugh like that, not if you paid me. I think it was outside on the landing."

Dick did not share his view, but he went onto the landing. He found nothing. When he returned he had the feeling for the first time that he and the policeman were the only two in the room. That invisible presence had withdrawn.

"Sounded like a ghost to me," said the police officer.

Dick turned on him, too full of laughter to snarl.

"Have you ever heard a ghost laugh, you poor—fellow?"

"No, sir, but it's the sort of laugh that I should expect a ghost to give," said the policeman with dignity.

"It is surprising," Dick told Bourke later, "how difficult it is to get a uniformed policeman rattled. There's something inhuman about him."

There was a silence now, which the policeman broke.

"What would you like me to do, sir? I shall have to report this, of course, sir."

"Certainly report. Say that I called you in, and——"

At this moment all the lights in the room came on. Dick had turned on the switch, hoping to get some sort of illumination, and had gotten to turn it back. In some part of the house the mysterious prowlers had pulled over the main switch. There was no light on the landing below, but looking over the stairs Dick saw the reflection of the lamp he had turned on the kitchen stairway.

He made another and probably his twentieth survey of the room, opened the cupboard again, and again hammered at the wall with his truncheon. It was solid plaster and brick. Even when he kicked against it there was not the slightest tremor or movement. The floor was not only firm but had been covered with some material like asphalt.

And now the scent of——

"What's the name of that perfume?"

"Sans Atout, sir," said the constable with the air of one who was passing on a morsel of education.

Dick sniffed and sniffed. It was strong in the cupboard—cedar and roses. He closed the door, turned the handle which fastened it, and followed the constable down the stairs. As he expected, the front door had been bolted and chained. He made a mental note to have these moved on the morrow.

It was nearly 1 o'clock before he went to bed, and was well assured that he would not be disturbed again—nor was he.

He heard the tap on the door panel that announced the coming of his morning tea, and bade a droway "Come in."

"Do you want this bottle on your table, sir?"

"Bottle?" Dick sat up in bed.

It was a small, beautifully designed little bottle, glass stoppered and beribboned. He picked it up and stared at it. Across the gray and green label, in quaint silver lettering, were the words: "Sans Atout." It was half empty.

"Who put that there?" asked Dick huskily.

Minns shook his head.

"Thank you," said Dick, and, when the man had gone, he got up and walked onto the balcony and, craning his head around, stared into the mysterious room.

"You've got a nerve!" he addressed the daring unknown.

CHAPTER XIII.

DICK was eating a very thoughtful and solemn breakfast in what he had flippantly called the baronial hall, which was Tommy's dining room, when the owner of the house walked in. It was the sort of crazily unexpected appearance that Tommy loved to make.

"For the love of Mike, what's the matter with Clacton?"

Tommy's face was long and lugubrious.

"I'm finished, old thing. I've made a most fearful faux pas—committed the most terrible sole—you know the word, old boy: its highabrow and means 'blotted my copybook.'"

"Solecism is the word you want. That is the best news I've heard for a long time. Sit down at your own mahogany. Does this mean," he asked in a tone of alarm, "that I'm to be inflicted with your presence?"

"No. It doesn't," snapped Tommy. "It's all off with Mary and me, old boy, that's all. It's pretty ghastly."

"It's pretty ghastly for you, I expect," said Dick cheerfully, "but probably a great happiness for her. By Mary do you mean Miss Mary Dane."

Tommy nodded.

"I had a perfectly lovely evening with her, walking up and down that promenade, looking down on the band Happy as a sandboy, old lad. Poor old Cornfort in a state of coma. He went to bed at nine, bless his old heart! She said she'd come and stroll along the front, and she did too, and then like an idiot, when we were sitting down on one of the beastly hard seats, I slipped a little present for her into her bag. It was open at the time—the bag I mean. I bought it in London—cost a fortune, old boy. If I hadn't taken the cork out it'd have been all right. I didn't know it was going to leak all over her beastly bag, did I, old boy?"

Dick was on his feet.

"What was your present?" he asked breathlessly.

"A little bottle of scent—all the go just now—stuff they call Sans Atout. I always thought it was a game of cards, but there you are, you live and learn," said Tommy miserably. "She was fearfully peeved—not at all the gentle Mary. She said she hated that kind of stuff, scent and all that junk, but I noticed she stuck to it."

"Feeling ill?" asked Tommy anxiously.

Dick shook his head.

"No; go on with this—ridiculous story. I suppose she left you?"

"No, she didn't," snapped Tommy. "I left her. In fact, old boy, it was a lovers' tiff."

"A what?" asked Dick, his stern eye on his friend.

"Well, a tiff. She made me fearfully annoyed, and I got up and walked away. I came back in time to see her going into the house."

"What time was that?"

"It must have been 10—possibly it wasn't 10. Nearer 9, I think! I never know what time any time is," said Tommy, in the deeps of gloom.

"You didn't see her again?"

"Of course I saw her again." Tommy could be very testy. "You don't suppose a fellow like me would allow himself to be so ungentlemanly without apologizing? I called her up from the hotel."

"That isn't seeing her."

"It's as good as seeing her, isn't it? I asked her to come out to give me a chance of undoing, as it were, the mischief I had done."

Dick waited. He dared not ask a question.

"And she did come out! We strolled up and down in front of the house. She told me she was a bit worried. She said that there was a girl in England exactly like her in appearance. She'd seen her that day in Clacton."

"You saw her, you swear you saw her?" interrupted Dick eagely. "It was Mary Dane?"

Tommy looked at him in some concern.

"Not feeling well, old boy?" he asked solicitously.

"I'm well enough," said Dick. "I only want to know, are you perfectly sure that's the girl you were with last night between eleven and what time?"

"Must have been twelve," said Tommy. "Yes, it was Mary Dane. Who the dickens do you think it was?"

Dick covered his face with his hands and groaned.

"That girl's given me more heart attacks than any human being I've ever known," he said. Then he looked up. "What is the idea of your coming up?"

"I've come up"—Tommy was very deliberate and important—"to get you to help about this charming young creature's double. You may not have heard of such a thing——"

"Oh, Lord!" Dick raised both hands to the ceiling. "Never heard about her double!"

"She told me," Tommy went on, unperturbed, "that all sorts of people, including this feller who was killed in old Derrick's house, had mistaken her for somebody else, so I thought to myself, 'There's only one bird who can solve this mystery and that's the Dicky-bird.' And you're it!"

Dick looked at him in wonder.

"Do you mean to tell me that you've come all the way from Clacton-on-Sea, that bourgeois but pleasant resort, to ask me to take up the case of Mary Dane's double, your poor gibbering fish? I repeat, so that it may sink into the shallows of your mind, that Mary Dane's double has given Scotland Yard—which for the once is me—more anxiety than—than——"

"Anything," suggested Tommy helpfully.

He left soon after ten, and Dick could not but believe that there was a very special reason other than that Tommy had advanced for his sudden return to town. He had a letter from Derrick in the afternoon, asking him to meet him the next day at his club. He was going, not to France, as he had intended, but to Scotland, or, as he put it himself, he intended taking the car and "drifting North."

He wanted to know whether he would be required for the inquest on Lordy Brown, but this, Dick had been advised, was unnecessary. Brown's presence in the house was unaccountable but not beyond explanation. He had a conviction for burglary, had otherwise a very bad character, and it was quite within the bounds of reason that he should choose the house of an old acquaintance, who was notoriously rich, for the exercise of his illicit craft. The man had so changed since Walter Derrick had seen him last that he wasn't even able to identify him.

Dick could not accept the invitation, and Derrick came to see him.

"My nerves are going as the result of this infernal business," Derrick said "and I thought I'd just drift about the country and eventually fetch up on the north of the Tweed. I may get bored and run back to town; if I do I will let you know."

BOND MART CLOSES GENERALLY HIGHER

Interest Lags Somewhat in Convertible Issues; Carrier List Active.

FOREIGNS REMAIN DULL

New York, July 19 (A.P.).—Trading fell off in today's irregular bond market as interest lagged in the convertible list. Reactionary tendencies marked the course of the early dealings, but a spurt in American I. G. Chemicals 5½s and easier money attracted some buying and the market improved, closing generally higher.

Money developed an easier tone by midday as a good supply of funds came into the market. Call money renewed at 8 and dropped to 7 per cent for over the weekend. Time money held at 7¾ per cent.

American I. G. Chemical 5½s, which yesterday broke through to new high at 116, opened at 116½, slipped off to 115 and then mounted to 120¾, where they closed for a gain of 5¼ points. Public Service Corporation of New Jersey 4½s again were whirled upward, soaring 10 points to close at a new high at 270. The stock also established a new top.

Railroad bonds with stock privileges continued to attract a good following. The New Haven convertible debenture 6s and convertible regular 6s and Southern Pacific 4½s followed their stocks into high ground. The New Haven regular convertible 6s jumped 10 points and the debentures 6s Alleghany Corporation 5s of 1949 moved up 1¼ to a new high at 110¼. Atchison convertible 4½s rose 2½.

Selling pressure was lifted from International Telephone convertible 4½s and they moved up 2¾, while American Telephone convertible 4½s lost a fraction.

All of the U. S. Government obligations sold off in a thin market.

The foreign list was dull.

Old Virginia Blue Law To Bar Sunday Business

The Virginia blue law with regard to Sabbath observance is to be revived and enforced on all drug stores, restaurants and lunchrooms in the county beginning Sunday, Lindsay declared today. Notices were issued to all concerned.

The move comes as a result of complaints by certain representative groups of citizens, Lindsay said, that the violation of the strict Sunday observance rule in the lower section of the county is a "growing annoyance."

EDGAR STONE'S BODY FOUND POISON-FREE

One Case Against Mother Ends as Examining Chemist Makes Report.

OTHER ANALYSES PUSHED

Special to The Washington Post.

Belair, Md., July 19.—One of the Stone poisoning cases was closed today with the announcement of the long-awaited report on the analysis of Edgar Stone's stomach by State's Attorney W. Worthington Hopkins. The report states that the boy did not die of poison. His mother, meanwhile, is held in jail on a charge of poisoning her other son, George.

The same chemists who examined Edgar's stomach for poison are now analyzing the stomach of Mrs. Stone's husband, Edward. Their report on his death is not expected until Wednesday, Mr. Hopkins said. The deaths of Mrs. Stone's parents-in-law also are being investigated, but in their cases no analyses are being made.

The bodies of the husband and the first son were taken from their graves in Angel Hill Cemetery, Havre de Grace, several weeks ago for the analyses. Autopsies were performed and the bodies were reburied. The husband died eighteen months ago and Edgar two years ago.

George Stone, with whose murder his mother is charged, died last June 4. John Stone, the accused woman's father-in-law, died ten years ago and his wife, Emma, died four years ago.

Sheriff Dewey Bowman conveyed to Mrs. Stone in her cell in the jail the news that no poison had been found in the case of her son Edgar.

"Just what I have always said from the beginning," commented Mrs. Stone.

Firemen were unable to save the house. There was no insurance. Her husband was at work in another county.

Virginia Educator Is Dead in Liberia

Yellow Fever Kills Man Well Known for Efforts in for Colored Race.

Special to The Washington Post.

Charlottesville, Va., July 19.—A cablegram has been received at the local offices of the Jeanes and Slater funds, of which Dr. J. H. Dillard is president, announcing the death, in Monrovia, Liberia, of Prof. James L. Sibley, State agent for the two funds devoted to negro education and member of the advisory committee on education on the southern Liberian coast. Death was due to yellow fever, after an illness of only three days. At his own request the body was interred near the school which he managed for nearly five years.

A native of Montgomery, Ala., Prof. Sibley was educated in North Carolina and Georgia. In 1920 he engaged in extension work at the University of North Carolina in connection with the school of public welfare. Later he went to the University of Georgia as extension professor of social work in the school of education.

For a number of years Prof. Sibley was in charge of the Jeanes and Slater work in Alabama. So impressed was he with the good accomplished among the negro race in that State that he decided to carry on the work among the natives in Liberia. Under his direction the Monrovia School had experienced rapid growth. Among the members of the faculty was Rebecca Davis, a colored woman from Tennessee, with a remarkable talent for singing. Her salary was paid by various colored societies in fourteen Southern States. Just now she is on a furlough in this country.

SCHOOL CONTRACTS ARE LET IN BEDFORD

Officials of County Board Are Also Reelected; New Law in Effect.

BUS ROUTES TO BE FIXED

Special to The Washington Post.

Bedford, Va., July 19.—The county school board held the first meeting of its fiscal year this week, W. E. Fizer being reelected chairman and J. H. Rusher vice chairman of the board. Miss Rubye Scott has been reelected clerk and the appointment of Miss Eliza Stickley, school supervisor for the county, was confirmed at the meeting. The board began the operation of the business of the schools of the county on the unit system, in accord with the law which went into effect July 1. Only one set of accounts will be kept instead of ten, as before, and the financial condition of the board may be ascertained at any time. All bills will be submitted by the trustees giving the order, but they will be passed on by the board before they are paid.

Acting in response to requests made by citizens from Boonsbor and Hermitage communities, it was decided to continue the two-year high school course at these respective schools, the patrons making the necessary guarantee for the required number of pupils or for the payment of money should there be a shortage in attendance.

The contract for the erection of the Bedford Training School, colored, will be awarded E. A. Overstreet, contractor, the work to begin at once. A two-room building has been erected at Wheatland, replacing the one destroyed by fire. This building was constructed according to State plans at a cost of $2,232.52. Two one-room schools for white pupils and three for colored pupils were authorized by the board. In one case the site has been given by the patrons. The State supervisor has been requested to prepare plans for the proposed new high school building at Montvale, and C. H. Hinnant, architect, of Lynchburg, has asked permission to submit plans also without any obligation on the part of the school board. The school board has agreed to furnish $25,000 toward the erection of this building if the patrons will supplement the rest of the necessary amount.

J. H. Rusher turned over to the school board the option secured by the local committee on the site for the proposed building. The land consists of four acres located on the State highway, route 10, and is a portion of the farm owned by W. H. Buford.

A committee was appointed to fix the bus routes and contract for the transportation of pupils for the coming school term. A ruling was made that no driver less than 21 years of age shall be employed for the school buses. The board recommended that the State superintendent of public instruction be requested to permit the operation of several schools in isolated sections which have been having an average attendance less than that required by law.

CONTESTS FEATURE VIRGINIA PRIMARIES

Twenty-five Legislative Districts of State to Ballot on August 6.

121 CANDIDATES IN RACE

Richmond, Va., July 19 (A.P.).—Democrats of 25 of the State's 32 legislative districts will cast their ballots August 6 for 121 candidates for the Democratic nomination for the House of Delegates. Nominations for 79 legislative seats are to be made in the primary.

Nineteen of the legislative districts select nominees by convention after the primary, while in 38 districts there are no primary contests and the candidates filing notice have been made the nominees of the party.

Incumbents are seeking reelection for 54 legislative seats, and 23 of them have opposition from within the party.

In addition to the primary for members of the House of Delegates, vacancies are to be filled in four senatorial districts and nominees will be chosen in the primary. James S. Easley has no primary opposition and has been declared the Democratic nominee in the Tenth District to succeed Senator M. B. Booker, resigned.

In the Fifth District, however, E. H. Williams, of Smithfield, and former Representative E. E. Holland, of Suffolk, are contesting for the position held by the late Senator C. C. Vaughan. R. H. Langhorne, of Evington, and James C. Gilliam, of Naruna, seek the Democratic nomination in the Twelfth District for the Senate seat of the late Senator S. C. Goggin.

Gray Haddon, resigned. They are E. M. McClure, Spencer Holdcroft, Hill Montague, J. C. Nunnally and John J. Wicker, jr.

Eagle and Rattler Battle High in Air

Giant Bird Darts With Prey When Reptile Prepares to Strike.

Special to The Washington Post.

Staunton, Va., July 19.—A fight in midair between a giant eagle and a rattlesnake, with the final decision not known, is reported on reliable authority from Highland County.

Mrs. Abbie Selver Brown, who had spent a month in Highland County, was en route to Grafton, W. Va., the home of her nephew, Dr. F. S. Suddarth, for a visit before returning to San Bernardino, Calif., her home. Crossing Cheat Mountain, in West Virginia, in company with her niece, Miss Martha Wagner, the women heard what they thought was an airplane circling above.

They stopped their machine, and, looking up, saw the noise was being made by a big eagle, which was carrying a captive rattler. Occasionally the snake, head down, apparently by great effort, would raise its length until forming a semicircle as if trying to strike the bird. The eagle would then dart downward, swerving to one side. The effort of the snake to strike and the countertactics of the big bird were several times repeated when the combatants were passing the women. The fight was still on when the eagle flew beyond sight of the women.

Tame Cat Kills Snakes; Record Eight in Season

Special to The Washington Post.

Mount Savage, Md., July 19.—Miss Katie McNamee, who lives in the north end of Mount Savage, has a cat that hunts copperhead snakes. Tabby, answering to the name of "Puff," has killed eight copperheads this season ranging from 14 inches to 2 feet in length. Most of the dead snakes were carried to the house by the cat.

The snake-hunting of the tomcat has not changed his disposition, as he is tame and affectionate when in the house. The cat also acts as an alarm clock for his mistress, whom he awakens every morning at 8 o'clock. He climbs a tree near the house, leaps to the porch roof and meows at the bedroom window until Miss McNamee is aroused. The McNamee home is near a cliff and rocky hill where snakes are said to be abundant.
